WARNER ENDS GARRETT PROBE; PREPARES FOR FURTHER ACTION

Henry Ford has perfected an all-metal airplane driven by three Packard-Diesel motors, burning crude oil. The machine is expected to carry 11 passengers 100 miles at a fuel cost of $2.16. This means the fuel cost of taking 11 passengers across the ocean would be $64.80, less than $6 each. There is no cost for right of way, little for terminals and for wear and tear.

What is more important, in Ford's opinion, is the fact that fire hazards, explosion, carburetor adjustments, electric ignition, all dangerous elements in flying, are eliminated.

Concerning flying, it is apparently true that "we haven't seen anything yet."

Mr. Mitchell, attorney-general, warns the Senate judiciary committee that "further stimulating activities of prosecution under any law will get us into difficulties." He told the committee that in the last nine months the number of Federal prisoners has increased by 6277.

It will comfort bootleggers and their associates to know that if more of them are locked up the Government will hardly know what to do with them.

Henry H. Curran, head of the Association Against Prohibition, says three Americans out of every four are in revolt against prohibition, and the membership of his association is increasing 1000 a day.

That increase doubtless does exist, but it is not true that three Americans in every four are in revolt against prohibition. Straw votes do not tell any story completely.

Many will vote as they feel in straw votes, then vote as they think they ought to vote in a real election.

United States authorities say that one group of bootleggers in New York deposited about a million dollars recently. One member of the organization mentioned as a "driver" deposited in the New York Bank of America $572,678 in six months.

It seems to be a prosperous business.

The Catholic directory for 1930 shows that Catholic population in the United States, not including Alaska and island territories, is 20,078,202.

There are 2,248,571 children in Catholic parochial schools, 38,232 were converted to the Catholic faith last year.

There are 329 Catholic orphan asylums that take care of 51,523 orphans and 142 homes for the aged.

It is an active Church, hard working, far seeing, patient, when necessary.

Leonard B. Cassidy, Near Collapse, Reaches a Ranch, Crying for Protection

Mexico City, April 17 (AP)—The American embassy today reported that Leonard P. Cassidy, of Peabody, Mass., kidnaped Tuesday night by four men, was released late last night and reached Sebastopol ranch in a state of exhaustion.

Herschel Johnson, American charge d'affaires, said the report of Cassidy's release came from Patrick O'Hea, president of the Transcontinental Fruit Company, in which Cassidy is a shipping department head.

One of the bandits is understood to be held.

Cassidy was unable to furnish details of why he was kidnaped or why he was released, it was said.

O'Hea said that his information came in a telephone message from Tuxtepec, which said that Cassidy had arrived alone at Sebastopol, an outlying ranch in the State of Oaxaca, and had asked for transportation to the nearest railroad station.

Cassidy was quoted as asking for

LAWYER IN GARRETT CASE FREED

Atty. Joseph Rice, counsel for Mrs. May Butterfield, witness in the aGrrett probe, was found not guilty by uJdge Thomas H. Dowd in municipal court after a hearing on charges of larceny of a $14 pair of eyeglasses preferred against him by Harold S. Stone, Boylston st. optician.

Presents Cloth to Hoovers

Washington, April 17 (AP)—North Carolina mountaineers, who have learned to read and write since they were grown men and women, presented President Hoover today a bolt of cloth woven at spinning wheels in mountain cabins.

Mrs. Palie Farlow, mountain-bred, said to the President as she handed him the stout spun material:

"This is for you and your wife."

There was enough material for a suit for the President and enough for an ensemble for Mrs. Hoover.

OLGA GUILTY IN AMSTER CASE

New York, April 17 (AP)—A General Sessions jury today convicted Olga Eide Edwards, former dancer, of extorting money from Nathan L. Amster, millionaire traction magnate, under threats of naming him publicly as the father of her six-year-old son, Lee.

The case went to the jury late yesterday afternoon after Miss Edwards' lone defense denied she ever threatened Amster and insisted contributions he made to her during the 13 years they were acquainted were given of his own free will.

She alleged that Amster wittingly became the father of her child.

Miss Edwards' attorney, in closing argument, said that Amster was "the victim of friends" and would not have brought the extortion action against Miss Edwards voluntarily. He charged the action was brought primarily to break an agreement under which Amster had settled a $100,000 trust fund upon Miss Edwards and the boy.

The jury recommended mercy. Judge Rosalsky may impose a sentence of two and half to five years' imprisonment or suspend sentence set for April 25.

Worcester, April 17—Fred L. Anderson, Jr., who claims to be a deputy sheriff of Greene County, New York, was arrested today on a warrant charging him with passing and uttering two forged checks. He pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Judge Frank Riley in district court and was held in $200 for a hearing tomorrow. Police say he is wanted on similar charges in Boston and Westboro.

MILLION FUND FOR FIGHT ON DRY LAW

Massachusetts First Battlefield in War, Curran Tells the Lobby Probers

Washington, April 17 (AP)—Continuing his assault against the dry laws, Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, testified before the Senate lobby committee today that his organization would require more than $1,000,000 to conduct its activities this year.

In a letter last January to Percy S. Straus of New York, which was read before the committee, Curran said the chief plan in impressing upon Congress that the country was "mostly wet," would consist of holding state-wide referenda similar to those conducted last year in Wisconsin and previously in Montana, Nevada and New York.

This year's campaign, the letter added, would b ebegun in Massachusetts and continued in other states "as fast as we can reach them."

The association spent $427,213 last year. Questioned about the amount, Curran siad it was needed t omaintain the organization.

FIVE STATES REVOLT.

Previously he had said three out of every four persons in the United Staates were wet and that five states—New York, Maryland, Wisconsin, Montana and Nevada—were in "revolt" against the prohibition law.

Curran also charged that some of the prohibition officers did not report all the facts concerning persons killed in enforcement of the liquor laws and said that Seymour Lowman, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury in charge of prohibition, accepted the reports.

Curran said he obtained his in-

Donovan Says He 'Pumped' Haley About 'Graft'

John F. Donovan, an attorney, testifying in the Chelsea graft case today, admitted that he obtained information from his client, John P. Haley, and turned it over to his employer, Mayor John J. Whalen, of Chelsea.

He admitted his purpose in visiting Haley, former holder of the ash and garbage contract, was to "get the lowdown" in regard to an alleged $5000 bribe paid by Haley to former Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley.

In response to a question by Atty. Frank Deland, counsel for Mayor Whalen, the witness said he saw nothing incongruous in keeping his friendship with Haley to get information for Whalen.

An attempt was made by Atty. Philip Nichols, counsel for the ten taxpayers, whose bill in equity resulted in the hearing, to characterize the conduct of Donovan as a base betrayal of his client.

WORKS WITHOUT PAY.

Donovan also testified that one of the signers of the petition for the bill in equity had made affidavit he could not read it and it had never been read to him.

Another feature of the hearing was the statement of Cornelius E. Twomey, present holder of the ash and garbage contract, that he must have been financially responsible because "I have been working at it 11 weeks without drawing any money from the city."

Recalled to the stand at the opening of today's session for cross-examination, Donovan, who said he had not accepted Mayor Whalen's secretaryship until the day before the inaugural, admitted he had spent much time with Haley.

DENIES "CUT" AGREEMENT

He denied allegations by Haley that in the presence of Mayor

BRISSENDEN UNDER QUIZ HAS POOR MEMORY

Doesn't Even Know Name of Kind Man Who Got Him a Lot of Customers

The Garrett investigation ended today.

Atty-Gen. Joseph E. Warner plunged immediately into preparation of his report to the Legislature and his possible plans to secure grand jury indictments.

While he would make no statement, it was indicated that he would place before a grand jury evidence of crime brought out in the public hearings and more evidence not made public. Alleged conspiracy and extortion were expected to be the basis of his grand jury action.

It appeared likely, too, that a federal grand jury would be asked to hear evidence upon which possible indictments for conspiracy to violate the prohibition act may be returned.

Today's two last witnesses, Alfred H. Brissenden and Sergt. James P. Sheehan, of Division 5, added nothing of a definite nature to the accusations already made and Atty. Gen. Warner's gavel rapped the close of the inquiry after nobody else appeared in response to his verbal "last chance" invitation.

Brissenden had "forgotten" nearly everything upon which the investigators were banking to show collusion between Garrett and a vice ring. Sergt. Sheehan presented an alibi to off-set a charge he conducted himself improperly at the Hotel Ritz.

Warner has consistently refused to anticipate the report he will submit by May 1 to the Legislature which ordered the investigation. The legislative mandate divided the inquiry into two phases, Garrett's activities as a policeman and the circumstances of his pensioning, while under charges, after removal from the liquor squad.

As regards the raider's activities, Atty.-Gen. Warner is expected to report that the investigation produced evidence which demands grand jury action.

REGARDING PENSION

As regards his pensioning, it is likely that he will submit the finding that Garrett's present mental and physical incapacity resulted from the Marshfield Fair horse racing accident, not the on-duty accident of August 2, 1927, on which he based his successful claim. What procedure can be taken to revoke Garrett's pension, if that action is advised, is not clear, but it would appear to be a matter for the city council and Mayor Curley.

With the hearings adjourned subject to call "if any," only one witness has made the direct charge that he paid graft to Garrett. That was John F. Sullivan, aged former proprietor of the Hotel Ritz, who also involved Mrs. Garrett, Mrs. Lillian V. Hatch, Sergt. Arthur Timmins and Special Officer Arthur Tiernan.

By the same token, those five have been the only ones directly accused, with the exception of a lawyer, now deceased.

Warner has indicated he will base his report to the Legislature entirely upon evidence introduced at the public hearings but it is known that he possesses other evidence, highly important and involving others than the five named.

Dishonest Legislation

Mr. Lomasney Scores Proposed Reduction of Exemptions on Small Income Tax Payers

MR. MARTIN M. LOMASNEY, with characteristic concern for the rights of small property owners and wage-earners, vigorously protested against the proposal now before the Legislature which would reduce the beggarly exemptions allowed under the income tax laws. He said:

"I do not believe that the income tax law of 1916 was sound legislation."

Mr. Lomasney's observation is not to be ignored, as he is the most experienced legislator in this State.

He could have added that it not only was not sound but that it was unjust and dishonest legislation.

IT WAS CONCEIVED IN THE IDEA OF LIFTING THE TAX FROM THE VAST STORES OF INTANGIBLE WEALTH IN THIS STATE AND OF PUTTING THE BURDEN UPON THE BACKS OF THOSE WHO SHOULD NOT BEAR IT. AND IT HAS DONE JUST THAT.

Mr. Lomasney continued:

"I desire to state that, in my opinion, one of the principal reasons for the present increased tax all over the State, besides ordinary waste, extravagance and inefficiency, is the collusive and dishonest manner in which the executive branch of many of our city governments is being administered."

That is a sweeping charge. But it contains much merit. And it affords a thought for expansion.

It is quite true that when the State and city governments concentrated their efforts upon the war, public developments were temporarily abandoned. Then came the period of reconstruction. New school buildings, neglected highways and a score of retarded public improvements were necessary to be made. But that period of super-expense is quite behind us now. The State has well caught up with it. THE CALL IS FOR LESS. NOT MORE TAXATION.

About $20,000,000 of State income taxes is dumped into the lap of the city governments of which Mr. Lomasney speaks every year. Many of them have already adjusted their budgets for the year. The State income taxes are new manna to them. It affords them a chance for improvident and reckless expending. It encourages them to seek new sluices through which to pour the people's money. The public official who resists the chance to spend money is a rare bird indeed.

The earners of incomes, those who produce it by honest toil, are contributing probably $5,000,000 of that total annually. It is not a tremendous sum in the aggregate. But to many of them it is an important sum, which represents a real hardship. To all of them, the State income tax is a vexatious nuisance.

A start in tax reduction, a start in eliminating the opportunity for wasteful extravagance, can be made by reducing the rate of the income tax and of increasing, rather than lowering, the exemptions. THE FIRST FRUIT OF THIS MOVEMENT WOULD BE ENJOYED BY THE SMALL SALARY AND WAGE-EARNERS. THEY WERE THE ONES WHO DERIVED THE FIRST AND THE CONTINUING INJUSTICE OF IT.

A Graceful Move

Representative McNulty Would Have State Contribute to Enjoyment of Gold Star Mothers' Trip

REPRESENTATIVE McNULTY of Roxbury today proposes that the State shall make a contribution to the Gold Star mothers who soon will begin their pilgrimage to the graves of their soldier dead in France.

He asks that $100 be given to each of them.

It is difficult to find a term which clearly expresses this proposal. It is not intended to be a donation, an honorarium or compensation. They could never be compensated for the service they have done their country.

But why bother struggling for a term? The State will no doubt adopt Mr. McNulty's proposal without a quibble.

The routine expenses of the mothers will properly be paid by the national government. But anyone who has made an European trip knows there are incidental expenses always cropping up and which, in some cases, prove to be a burden.

These fine ladies should begin this pilgrimage without a material worry to vex their minds. It is to them a holy pilgrimage. They will appreciate the sentimental concern which the State thus would manifest for them. Mr. McNulty has been thoughtful in this matter and his constituents will be grateful to him for it.

Church Home Society

Worthy Society Celebrates

ON April 24, the Church Home Society, having reached the robust age of seventy-five years, will stage one of the first celebrations contributory to the Tercentenary of Massachusetts Bay.

This worthy society has been engaged for three-quarters of a century in administering to the needs of dependent children. It has been performing a service which a dutiful state, interested in the well-being of future citizens, should not have overlooked or left to the generosity of private benefactors.

The society will put on a tableaux picturing the progressive care of dependent children "from the motherless child of Colonial days, and later the desolate days of almshouses, houses of correction and asylums to the foster-home plan used today."

While the care of children by a thoughtful private agency is thus being demonstrated, the Legislature could manifest a thoughtful interest in the fate of aged men and women by passing the old-age pensions bill which is now before it.

To the Elevated

POSSIBLY the public trustees of the Boston Elevated figure the saving of a few dollars by shutting off the Cambridge tunnel escalator at Park Street on Sundays.

And possibly they would take a different viewpoint of it if they saw their own wives and aged mothers along with the other old women trudging laboriously up the steep ascent from the tunnel to the street.

Run the escalator every day.

ILLINOIS ANTI-LEAGUE OF NATIONS VOTE

F. OPPER

UNCLE SAM avails himself of television to stage this special performance for the benefit of the President of the United States and three members of the United States Senate who are being weaned away from the traditional foreign policy of the founders of the republic. The artist has taken extra precautions to bring the show to the attention of the occupant of the White House.

You see him point to the sweeping victory for sound Americanism in the recent Illinois G. O. P. primaries and you hear him say, plainly and emphatically:

"I want to keep out of the League of Nations and all other foreign entanglements."

Every time the people have spoken their will on this matter they have registered unalterable opposition to this nation becoming entangled in any way with the vicissitudes of Old World politics.

Every statesman, be he President or United States Senator, who has sponsored any plea to involve this nation in European affairs, either through the League of Nations or the League Court, has gone down to overwhelming defeat at the polls.

Will the President, and the League Senators and the League Court Senators dare to flaunt the wisdom of the Fathers of the Nation, dare to treat lightly the oft-recorded wish of the citizens—and continue to espouse the cause of the international bankers, the meddlesome Matties and the pacifist busybodies?

H. G. Wells Writes on "The Science of Life"

In Collaboration With Prof. Julian Huxley and G. P. Wells

BOOK THREE.

CHAPTER IV.

THE EVIDENCE FROM THE VARIATION AND DISTRIBUTION OF LIVING THINGS

Sec. 1. The Variability of Living Things

H. G. Wells

THE rocks tell us that the forms of living things have changed slowly but steadily in the past, careful comparison of the structure and mode of development of creatures living today is in accordance with this fact. We will now open up a new series of facts that harmonize and complement those that have gone before.

If Evolution is the form of life's process, it must still rule life. Life must still be evolving today. Is that so? We do not see striking metamorphoses happening; Evolution is an extremely slow process, its changes in the case of the slower-breeding organisms take hundreds of thousands of years to accomplish, and it would be strange indeed if any profound alteration in the form of a living thing had occurred in the couple of hundred years during which animals and plants have been carefully and systematically observed.

To expect rapid changes of this kind is like expecting visible movement in the hour-hand of a clock. Nevertheless we can detect slight changes in progress, sufficient to convince us that Evolution still continues.

One of the clearest and most striking proofs of the plasticity of living things is the extraordinary variability they display under domestication.

* * *

Consider, for example, the dog.

Here we have an enormous assemblage of forms, the extremes differing from each other far more strikingly than many natural species, ranging in size from the St. Bernard and the Great Dane to the toy lapdogs, in proportion of parts from the slender-limbed greyhound to the low-hung daschund, from the long-nosed Collie to the snuffling Pekingese, and showing an enormous variety of colors and coat-patterns.

Yet they seem to be all of one kind; they recognize each other as like creatures and if the physical disparity between them is not too great they breed freely together. In a word they are all dogs.

They show to what an extent a living form may vary.

There are plenty of similar instances among domesticated animals. Compare, for example, a cart horse, a race horse and a Shetland pony, a carrier pigeon, a tumbler and a pouter, or the multitudinous fancy breed of rabbits and guinea pigs and mice.

And consider also the enormous richness of varieties that is found in cultivated plants—in roses or primroses or cereals.

It is unfortunate from the point of view of evolutionary science that the mode of origin of most of those special domesticated breeds has not been recorded.

They are in many cases very ancient. There were domesticated dogs in the bronze age cave and lake dwellings of Central Europe; in Egypt there were several distinct breeds, including a greyhound, as early as 300 B. C.; a dog very like the St. Bernard appears on Assyrian bas-reliefs.

Nevertheless, it is clear that man has been the primary cause of this extraordinary divergence. He has kept and bred from those animals which best suited his fancy, and he has drowned or starved or given away the others.

So he has gradually moulded the breeds.

There are plenty of cases in which the gradual changes have been recorded. The greyhound of today is more slender-legged than the greyhound that appears in Egyptian paintings; a specialist in hunting hares, he is smaller and lighter even than his Elizabethan ancestor, which was sent after deer and all sorts of game.

* * *

Again the bulldog has been modeled about almost like a lump of plasticine.

He was bred first for the special purpose of bull-baiting—hence his short, stocky build which enabled him to dodge the swing of the bull's horns, his underhung jaw and strong gape and his method of attack, which is to come boldly from the front, to seize the muzzle and hold on instead of dancing in from the rear and slashing after the manner of deerhounds and other elegant dogs.

When bull-baiting was made illegal in England the breed was kept on as a curiosity and was changed from a fighter to a caricature; its face became so short that it could hardly breathe through the nose, its legs were absurdly bowed and twisted, while its general physique and stamina deteriorated.

To a large extent this change was due to selective breeding, although that process was assisted by such tricks as keeping the pups in cages so low that they could barely stand up, to exaggerate the curve of the legs, and keeping them in harness to hollow their backs.

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

"OCCASIONAL FURNITURE"

FASCINATING stuff, this new "occasional furniture" they're using in homes nowadays.

Elsie Robinson

Gay little chairs and tables in black and vermillion lacquer-book cases and what-have-you's in enameled woods, emerald and silver, lavendar, coral and cobalt blue. Trivial, fragile things, sparkling as jewelry—and serving much the same purpose.

Last night, at twilight, I stood looking at a window full of it. Something—perhaps it was the dusk with its plucking tide of memories—made me think back to the time when life wasn't enameled and we didn't have "occasional furniture." When things had to pay their way. . . when chairs WERE chairs—

* * *

Dad's chair. No connoisseur would have coveted it. An old oak rocker, battered and worn, with no "lines"—no "period." Just a deep, wide old rocker with a worn, cushioned seat—

* * *

I DON'T know how many years we had had it. Ever since I was a little tad. Dad and that old rocker belonged together in my life. We were poor. Dad beat out his life in a tread mill for us youngsters.

Long days . . . bitter rough work . . . dragging his way home at night, pumping hard on spent lungs. Tired out. I can hear, yet, the little grunt of gratitude he'd give as he sank into his chair, and see the kind, worn paleness of his face, resting for a moment against its back.

* * *

DAD in his chair—I didn't know, then, the line about "God's in his heaven, all's well with the world," but all was well—very well—with my little world when Dad was at rest in his chair.

* * *

Dad and his chair, growing old together, much as he and mother grew old together, sharing shabbiness. Sharing weariness. Sharing each other, until their very souls took shape from each other. Comforting each other, at the end of the day, until the long night shut down——

* * *

"Occasional furniture"—how trifling those bright bits of wood look, when I think back to Dad's old chair . . . and how trifling much of our modern life seems. "Occasional furniture" — sometimes I think that is what we men and women have come to mean to each other.

* * *

SO much shoddy in our lives—so much brilliant, shallow effect—so little lasting substance. No time to think. No chance to be real. No opportunity to rest in each other—to belong to each other. Once in a year, perhaps, we meet an old friend. A slap on the back—a chat over a counter—then we're on our way to the next thing.

* * *

"Occasional furniture" — that's what many husbands and wives have become, too. Just something to have around, because humans are supposed to have things like that around. Something that caught the eye once, but which became tiresome, almost before it was installed. Pretty, perhaps clever, occasionally charming and companionable.

BUT what do they really mean to each other? How much do they really give to each other? How long can their marriage last? Until the newness has gone, until the fad has passed. And why not? What can they know of shabbiness shared? Of weariness comforted and grief consoled—and the long night faced together?

"Occasional furniture"—I wonder how many of us will receive that final rating in the great storehouse of God?

What Would Our Great Cities Do? SHIVER of Course

(Copyright, 1930)

THE BRITISH AIRPLANE CARRIER, "COURAGEOUS"

THIS airplane carrier, room on the wide top deck for many airplanes, a great hangar under the deck for many more, happens to be British.

So it does not alarm us. We don't expect the British ever to attack the United States. A nation with its empire scattered all over the earth is not likely to attack another able to retaliate.

In fact, we do not EXPECT any particular nation to attack us.

But we know that some nations hate us because we have excluded their people from freely coming to this country.

And other nations have toward us the kind of hatred based on envy; they think we are too rich, that we are not sufficiently generous.

Lending ten thousand millions of dollars and sending millions of our men abroad in a war that was not our war seems to them insufficient.

A "carrier" like this, or half a dozen such carriers, might approach our great cities from the east or west and release against us hundreds of fast small planes and release gigantic bombing planes.

If they attacked the east they could wipe out Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Washington in one morning. Bombs would destroy buildings, poison gas dropped in city streets would destroy the lives of millions.

WHAT COULD WE DO ABOUT IT?

At present nothing.

Before any defense could be organized the attack would be over.

Soon, with only a little greater development of airplanes, these airplane carriers will be unnecessary.

Airplanes will cross the oceans under their own power.

Such planes could attack and destroy our cities on the east or west coasts, or in the heart of America, and then, in perfect safety, retire to neutral territory in Mexico or in Canada, and be interned until the war's end.

And a dozen great planes would risk at most the lives of twenty-four men driving the enemy planes, while making possible the destruction of millions of lives here.

Foreign countries already have submarines that carry as part of their equipment small airplanes. Such submarines could enter any harbor, unseen, rise to the surface, and release the airplanes. WHAT THEN?

Would it not be wise, now that the ridiculous "naval reduction conference" in London has collapsed, to think about getting ready to defend ourselves instead of trying to arrange with other nations to be loving and peaceful, and not attack us?

We are big enough, rich enough, to have the greatest fleet for defense, in the air and below the water, in all the world.

We have the engineers that with government encouragement could build everything that we need.

Why not build?

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, April 16—Old-timers of the stage and screen are finding the problem of making a living more difficult than ever before. Each branch of the entertainment field demands not only new faces but, above all else, the glamour of Youth. So The Rialto is humming with swan songs.

In the legitimate theater this winter the majority of successes exploited stars in early 20's. More than 100 players of stellar capacities suddenly found themselves eddied to backwaters almost solely because they were past the age of 40. Such fine actors as Wilton Lackeye and others protrayed comparatively minor roles.

MANY who expected to find parts in the talkies discovered their voices did not meet the demands of synchronization. Any number of headliners have given up the struggle for jobs in their profession and are turning to anything that will provide a livelihood.

Still others are going "on tours to Australia"—an acknowledgement in the stage world that their professional careers so far as America is concerned are over. The "original New York company" has lost its lure in the outland. There is no hope there.

* * *

Innumerable men and women, whose names were box office attractions ten years and less ago, are marking time on Hollywood boulevard and Broadway, waiting for a shift in economic clouds. And because of their usual improvidence, there are many in actual distress

* * *

NOW and then something happens to give old-timers renewed hope, such as the hit made by Miss Grace George this winter or the success of the revival of William Gillette in "Sherlock Holmes," but these instances are sporadic and do not presage a permanent return to affluence.

Talkie producers have found they can now "make" a star almost over night and reap hefty rewards without paying the extravagant salaries demanded by those who made the grade several years ago. On the legitimate stage, 15 recognized stars the past season had excellent vehicles, but did not attract.

And to the wall of my bedroom, too.

WARNER ENDS GARRETT PROBE; PREPARES FOR FURTHER ACTION

—By Arthur Brisbane—

HERE is real flying news, important to all interested in moving about the earth.

Henry Ford has perfected an all-metal airplane driven by three Packard-Diesel motors, burning crude oil. The machine is expected to carry 11 passengers 100 miles at a fuel cost of $2.16. This means the fuel cost of taking 11 passengers across the ocean would be $64.80, less than $6 each. There is no cost for right of way, little for terminals and for wear and tear.

What is more important, in Ford's opinion, is the fact that fire hazards, explosion, carburetor adjustments, electric ignition, all dangerous elements in flying, are eliminated.

Concerning flying, it is apparently true that "we haven't seen anything yet."

Mr. Mitchell, attorney-general, warns the Senate judiciary committee that "further stimulating activities of prosecution under any law will get us into difficulties." He told the committee that in the last nine months the number of Federal prisoners has increased by 6277.

It will comfort bootleggers and their associates to know that if more of them are locked up the Government will hardly know what to do with them.

Henry H. Curran, head of the Association Against Prohibition, says three Americans out of every four are in revolt against prohibition, and the membership of his association is increasing 1000 a day.

That increase doubtless does exist, but it is not true that three Americans in every four are in revolt against prohibition. Straw votes do not tell any story completely.

Many will vote as they feel in straw votes, then vote as they think they ought to vote in a real election.

United States authorities say that one group of bootleggers in New York deposited about a million dollars recently. One member of the organization mentioned as a "driver" deposited in the New York Bank of America $572,678 in six months.

It seems to be a prosperous business.

The Catholic directory for 1930 shows that Catholic population in the United States, not including Alaska and island territories, is 20,078,202.

There are 2,248,571 children in Catholic parochial schools, 38,232 were converted to the Catholic faith last year.

Some 100,000 are taken care of daily in 624 Catholic hospitals and clinics.

There are 329 Catholic orphan asylums that take care of 51,523 orphans and 142 homes for the aged.

It is an active Church, hard working, far seeing, patient, when necessary.

Mexico City, April 17 (AP)—The American embassy today reported that Leonard P. Cassidy, of Peabody, Mass., kidnaped Tuesday night by four men, was released late last night and reached Sebastopol ranch in a state of exhaustion.

Herschel Johnson, American charge d'affaires, said the report of Cassidy's release came from Patrick O'Hea, president of the Transcontinental Fruit Company, in which Cassidy is a shipping department head.

Cassidy was unable to furnish details of why he was kidnaped or why he was released, it was said.

O'Hea said that his information came in a telephone message from Tuxtepec, which said that Cassidy had arrived alone at Sebastopol, an outlying ranch in the State of Oaxaca, and had asked for transportation to the nearest railroad station.

Cassidy was quoted as asking for

There was enough material for a suit for the President and enough for an ensemble for Mrs. Hoover.

OLGA GUILTY IN AMSTER CASE

New York, April 17 (AP)—A General Sessions jury today convicted Olga Eide Edwards, former dancer, of extorting money from Nathan L. Amster, millionaire traction magnate, under threats of naming him publicly as the father of her six-year-old son, Lee.

The case went to the jury late yesterday afternoon after Miss Edwards' lone defense denied she ever threatened Amster and insisted contributions he made to her during the 13 years they were acquainted were given of his own free will.

She alleged that Amster wittingly became the father of her child.

Miss Edwards' attorney, in closing argument, said that Amster was "the victim of friends" and would not have brought the extortion action against Miss Edwards voluntarily. He charged the action was brought primarily to break an agreement under which Amster had settled a $100,000 trust fund upon Miss Edwards and the boy.

The jury recommended mercy. Judge Rosalsky may impose a sentence of two and half to five years' imprisonment or suspend sentence set for April 25.

MILLION FUND FOR FIGHT ON DRY LAW

Massachusetts First Battlefield in War, Curran Tells the Lobby Probers

Washington, April 17 (AP)—Continuing his assault against the dry laws, Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, testified before the Senate lobby committee today that his organization would require more than $1,000,000 to conduct its activities this year.

In a letter last January to Percy S. Straus of New York, which was read before the committee, Curran said the chief plan in impressing upon Congress that the country was "mostly wet," would consist of holding state-wide referenda similar to those conducted last year in Wisconsin and previously in Montana, Nevada and New York.

This year's campaign, the letter added, would b ebegun in Massachusetts and continued in other states "as fast as we can reach them."

The association spent $427,213 last year. Questioned about the amount, Curran siad it was needed t omaintain the organization.

FIVE STATES REVOLT.

Previously he had said three out of every four persons in the United Staates were wet and that five states—New York, Maryland, Wisconsin, Montana and Nevada—were in "revolt" against the prohibition law.

Curran also charged that some of the prohibition officers did not report all the facts concerning persons killed in enforcement of the liquor laws and said that Seymour Lowman, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury in charge of prohibition, accepted the reports.

Curran said he obtained his in-

Donovan Says He 'Pumped' Haley About 'Graft'

John F. Donovan, an attorney, testifying in the Chelsea graft case today, admitted that he obtained information from his client, John P. Haley, and turned it over to his employer, Mayor John J. Whalen, of Chelsea.

He admitted his purpose in visiting Haley, former holder of the ash and garbage contract, was to "get the lowdown" in regard to an alleged $5000 bribe paid by Haley to former Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley.

In response to a question by Atty. Frank Deland, counsel for Mayor Whalen, the witness said he saw nothing incongruous in keeping his friendship with Haley to get information for Whalen.

An attempt was made by Atty. Philip Nichols, counsel for the ten taxpayers, whose bill in equity resulted in the hearing, to characterize the conduct of Donovan as a base betrayal of his client.

WORKS WITHOUT PAY.

Donovan also testified that one of the signers of the petition for the bill in equity had made affidavit he could not read it and it had never been read to him.

Another feature of the hearing was the statement of Cornelius E. Twomey, present holder of the ash and garbage contract, that he must have been financially responsible because "I have been working at it 11 weeks without drawing any money from the city."

Recalled to the stand at the opening of today's session for cross-examination, Donovan, who said he had not accepted Mayor Whalen's secretaryship until the day before the inaugural, admitted he had spent much time with Haley.

DENIES "CUT" AGREEMENT

He denied allegations by Haley that in the presence of Mayor

BRISSENDEN UNDER QUIZ HAS POOR MEMORY

Doesn't Even Know Name of Kind Man Who Got Him a Lot of Customers

The Garrett investigation ended today.

Atty.-Gen. Joseph E. Warner plunged immediately into preparation of his report to the Legislature and his possible plans to secure grand jury indictments.

While he would make no statement, it was indicated that he would place before a grand jury evidence of crime brought out in the public hearings and more evidence not made public. Alleged conspiracy and extortion were expected to be the basis of his grand jury action.

It appeared likely, too, that a federal grand jury would be asked to hear evidence upon which possible indictments for conspiracy to violate the prohibition act may be returned.

Today's two last witnesses, Alfred H. Brissenden and Sergt. James P. Sheehan, of Division 3, added nothing of a definite nature to the accusations already made and Atty. Gen. Warner's gavel rapped the close of the inquiry after nobody else appeared in response to his verbal "last chance" invitation.

Brissenden had "forgotten" nearly everything upon which the investigators were banking to show collusion between Garrett and a vice ring. Sergt. Sheehan presented an alibi to off-set a charge he conducted himself improperly at the Hotel Ritz.

Warner has consistently refused to anticipate the report he will submit by May 1 to the Legislature which ordered the investigation. The legislative mandate divided the inquiry into two phases, Garrett's activities as a policeman and the circumstances of his pensioning, while under charges, after removal from the liquor squad.

As regards the raider's activities, Atty.-Gen. Warner is expected to report that the investigation produced evidence which demands grand jury action.

REGARDING PENSION

As regards his pensioning, it is likely that he will submit the finding that Garrett's present mental and physical incapacity resulted from the Marshfield Fair horse racing accident, not the on-duty accident of August 2, 1927, on which he based his successful claim. What procedure can be taken to revoke Garrett's pension, if that action is advised, is not clear, but it would appear to be a matter for the city council and Mayor Curley.

With the hearings adjourned subject to call "if any," only one witness has made the direct charge that he paid graft to Garrett. That was John F. Sullivan, aged former proprietor of the Hotel Ritz, who also involved Mrs. Garrett, Mrs. Lillian V. Hatch, Sergt. Arthur Timmins and Special Officer Arthur Tiernan.

By the same token, those five have been the only ones directly accused, with the exception of a lawyer, now deceased.

Warner has indicated he will base his report to the Legislature entirely upon evidence introduced at the public hearings but it is known that he possesses other evidence, highly important and involving others than the five named.

which he may put before a grand jury.

REMAIN SILENT

Although several persons have testified that Sullivan told them he was paying Garrett and other police, no direct corroborative evidence has been shown, although Warner may have it in reserve for grand jury action.

Garrett, in his last-minute "about-face" statement refusing to take the stand said he would tell his story in court. He expects to be indicted.

None of the others named as graft receivers appeared today in answer to the attorney-general's blanket invitation for them to testify after waiving immunity.

None of the five was present at today's hearing. Lt. Daniel J. Hines, shown yesterday to have banked more than $70,000 in the past 10 years, was reported "quite ill" at his Dorchester home. Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson is said to be recovering from the results of his ordeal under examination.

As a result of the report Warner will make to the General Court the resignation, either forced or voluntary, of Commissioner Wilson is foredained, as is a complete shake-up of the present Boston police department personnel.

There is a strong possibility that, as a result of his findings, the Legislature will empower him to make a complete probe of the entire department.

BIG CROWD ON HAND

Another likely result is legislation taking from the Governor the power to name the police commissioner and perhaps it will be decided as a result of Wilson's admission that the job is too big for one man, to create a board of commissioners.

A huge crowd appeared at the State House hearing room today and was disappointed when the raider who, with his wife, banked $122,959 in six years on a maximum salary of $2100 annually, did not show up. His attorney, Herbert F. Callahan, was present, but made no statement.

Sergt. James P. Sheehan of Division 5 took the stand, waived immunity and denied he was one of two sergeants who, according to James Apelman, prohibition agent, ejected two men from the defunct Hotel Ritz because they took their own liquor there instead of buying it on the premises.

He offered the Division 5 journal to establish that on the night in question he had been acting lieutenant and not outside the station house.

The other witness, Brissenden, for whose testimony a Supreme Court order and full bench decision had been sought and obtained, was a "dud" insofar as establishing the expected connection between the Garret Pine Grove farm milk route and Boston vice resorts was concerned.

GIVEN IMMUNITY

He first obtained a grant of immunity, then, under a rigid examination by Special Asst. Atty.-Gen. Damon E. Hall, he disclosed that he had "forgotten" every single important point which it was hoped by Warner would be established of record.

He had by far the poorest memory of any of those questioned during the investigation, and some very poor memories were revealed during the hearings.

Hall sought to link as customers of the Garrett farm several of the South End vice resorts about which the Lincoln House Association had complained, without result, to Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson in 1925.

Brissenden couldn't remember addresses of his customers, names of his customers nor whether he had ever told the federal income tax investigators that Joe Levine, under federal indictment for white slavery, had solicited customers for his milk route.

He testified he was Mrs. Garrett's brother-in-law and that her solicitation he went to work on the Hingham farm in September, 1928, remaining there until the following March. For two months he drove a truck delivering milk from the Garrett cows in Dorchester, building up the business from 75 quarts to between 150 and 200 quarts a day, he said.

Then he became foreman, solicitor and collector. The Garrett cattle herd grew from 20 to about 60 head and about a dozen employes were maintained at the farm. He had no knowledge of salaries or overhead, he said, but Mrs. Garrett told him the business was not profitable.

"I want to know whether a list of customers was furnished you by Joe Levine?" asked Hall.

"I don't know the gentleman, I couldn't say," said Brissenden.

He couldn't remember having told the Federal officers that Levine had obtained customers for him. He couldn't remember having told them that Levine "lives on the corner of Massachusetts ave., and Columbus ave., between Columbus ave. and the bridge."

NO RECOLLECTION

He couldn't remember that he had told the federal men Morris Swartz and Morris Stein were customers on his route. He had no recollection of having delivered milk at certain houses on Tremont st., Columbus ave., Massachusetts ave., Castle st. and Shawmut ave.

He couldn't remember ever having said he delivered milk to "Rose Phillips, up one flight at ——— and ——— sts." He may have had a lady customer up one flight at that address, but he couldn't recall who she was and he didn't think the "kindly gentleman who took such an interest in the business" had procured her patronage.

"There was a man living there who helped you obtain customers?"

"Yes," he answered. The man himself was a customer, but he couldn't recall his name or the number of his house.

This man—"this very kindly gentleman who telephoned for new customers"—was a complete stranger to Brissenden. He thought the man made four, five, or six calls and that one call might have been to ——— Compton st., an alleged vice resort.

Nor could he recall where the kindly man had got a customer named Capudellopo for him. Again he protested that he didn't know who the "kindly gentleman" was.

"You did not inquire who he was?"

"No, sir."

"You thanked him for it, did you not?" asked Hall sarcastically.

"Yes, of course," Brissenden assured him.

Other marked sarcasm by the prosecutor failed to budge him. Brissenden didn't know where the books were in which the route records were kept. He denied ever having stated that he delivered milk to "sporting houses."

"The whole route may have been sporting houses, but I did not know it," he said.

He saw Lieut. Hines at the Garrett farm only once, he said. He denied he had ever said he saw Dudley Mulrenin there once a week. After Garrett's birth certificate was introduced—he was born at Mechanics Falls, Me., Oct. 14, 1895, Warner asked if there was anybody present who cared to testify. There was no response and his gavel fell.

D. A. R.'S Ringing Warning Against Foreign Entanglements

WASHINGTON, April 17.—The stand of the Daughters of the American Revolution against European entanglements is expressed in the following report, which was adopted with ringing applause:

"We must stand against involvement in European affairs and stand anew for American independence.

"In this time of unrest over the world, when work is being done to drag the United States into a tangle of European politics, by way of the League of Nations, or by way of the World Court, or by way of a consultative pact, or by any means, little or big, slight or important, to get us involved in European diplomacy or in European offensive or defensive operations, it is healthy for us to look back to the days of our Revolutionary fathers and mothers, when our flag was born.

"Our Revolutionary fathers left Europe for reasons best known to them, to build a government whose chief thought was the interest of the individual, his happiness, security and prosperity.

"This Government, so established, represented new ideas in the world, equality among citizens.

"We should pledge ourselves anew today to those principles and pledge ourselves anew to this flag, now 150 years old."

which described itself as "Kansas greatest newspaper," prints a statement by Prof. Millikan which will please you.

Jeans, great English astronomer, is wrong, says Millikan. The universe is not "running down" like a clock with nobody to wind it.

Probably you have worried little about that. On earth, clocks are rewound. We take it for granted that the power that wound up this universe originally will know how to wind it up again, after the present galaxies, nebulae, solar systems and planets shall have used up their energy.

Nevertheless, it is a comfort to be told on Prof. Millikan's high authority that the universe is rebuilt from atoms or electrons thrown off by the stars in their radiation, as new forests grow from soil made of leaves from trees long dead.

Prof. Jeans tells you that each minute, through radiation of actual substance, the weight of our sun diminishes by 250,000,000 tons, which means that the sun is lighter now by 1,000,000,000 tons than it was four minutes ago. You f sure that there must be some arrangement to make up that loss.

Perhaps the sun flying through space absorbs matter equal to what it has lost, as whales with wide open mouths gather tiny marine creatures that build their huge bulk!

In any case, individuals now living need not worry. The sun that lights our earth and gives us life will last millions of millions of years longer, and this earth with it. Plenty of time to get everything done in, say, 500,000,000 years.

We are now only 12,000 years from the late Stone Age, and see what we have accomplished.

Lack of employment is said to be increasing throughout the world. You are surprised to find that Russia, with a bigger population than ours, making social experiments expected by capitalism to end disastrously, has fewer unemployed than we have by far. The richest, most prosperous, and industrially the most highly developed nation should be able to keep its men at work.

D. A. R. ATTACKS ALL FOREIGN ALLIANCES

Stands for a Strong Defense and Opposes Atheism and Pacifism

Washington, April 17 (AP)—Continuing attacks on "foreign entanglements," the Daughters of the American Revolution approved a resolution today declaring against commithment of the country to alliances "which would operate to limit our full liberty of decision on international affairs."

The convention also endorsed the report of the national defense chairman, Mrs. William Sherman Walker, which described an active campaign against "pacifism, atheism, scoialism and communism."

Mrs. Walker quoted former President Coolidge as saying that the Army and Navy had already been reduced to the "danger point."

She said only five and a fraction cents out of every tax dollar go for providing National defense, adding that the defense committee took "a firm stand in supporting an adequate Navy while the cruiser agitation was going on in Congress."

"Our society still stands for a Navy communsurate with American needs past, present and future," she emphasized.

LOVE LETTERS ONLY CLUE IN GIRL MURDER

Writer of Ardent Notes Vanishes, as Do Two Chums of Slain Capital Worker

Washington, April 17 (AP)—A man who wrote love letters to Mary Baker, frequent letters of unrestrained ardor, was sought by the police today as a figure of great importance in the mystery that surrounds her death.

The authorities are convinced he had left the city, whether in flight or not. They decline to make public his name.

Today they were trying to determine if he was one of Miss Baker's guests at a house warming party on March 31, when she and her two companions, Miss Mildred Sperry and Miss Olga Skinner, moved into their new house in Lynn Park, Va.

Miss Baker was attacked and then slain in a lonely road near Arlington National Cemetery, Friday night.

The Washington police, the Arlington county, (Virginia), authorities, the Department of Justice and the army have engaged in an intensive investigation. One clue after another has dwindled into unimportance and today the writer of the letters, which were found among Miss Baker's effects, was the only remaining suspect.

The police were curious about the disappearance of Miss Sperry and Miss Skinner. For they had not been seen since they left Oak Grove, Va., after attending the murdered girl's funeral.

HOOVER PLANS TO RUSH NAVY PACT O. K.

Sounds Out Senate Leaders in Hope That Ratification Will Be Given Soon

Washington, April 17 (AP)—President Hoover, who is anxious for early consideration of the London naval treaty by the Senate, was advised today by some Senate leaders to give the Senate time to study the draft before deciding to ask for its ratification at this session.

The President has begun canvassing the situation to ascertain the likelihood of Senate action this spring.

Conferring today with Senate leaders, he was informed that they are hopeful of supporting the treaty and getting it through this session, but they withheld an opinion pending study of the pact.

LEADERS URGE CARE

Senator Watson, Indiana, Republican leader, was a White House breakfast guest. Chairman Borah of the Senate foreign relations committee was consulted later and indicated support for the treaty. Chairman Hale of the naval committee was called for luncheon.

The London treaty was the object of each discussion. Sen. Swanson, Virginia ranking Democrat on the foreign relations and naval affairs committee, discussed the treaty last night with the President.

Mr. Hoover was given divergent views from the senators, but they were almost united in a plea to be given an opportunity for study of the pact before committing themselves.

MANY SPEED CRUISERS.

The President left the impression on his callers that he was anxious for consideration of the treaty at this session. His conferences today were regarded at the Capitol as steps paving the way to that end.

Representative French of Idaho, chairman of the important naval appropriations sub-committee, said today that President Hoover was expected to permit the laying down of three of the first five cruisers in the 15-cruiser program within between 30 and 60 days.

French, who has been in frequent touch with the President on naval affairs, outlined a plan of his under which the laying down of the second five cruisers would be delayed until late in the next fiscal year. He intends to propose the plan to his committee, which is engaged in drafting the navy appropriations bill.

Under the London naval accord, French explained, the third five cruisers of the three-year program are not to be constructed.

Robinson Says Pact Lifts Limit in Time of Need

London, April 17 (AP)—Senator Joseph T. Robinson, member of the American delegation to the naval conference, today issued a statement outlining the terms of the safeguarding clause in the naval treaty. He said:

"The so-called safeguarding clause in the naval treaty will provide in general that if during the term of the treaty the requirements of national security of any of the three powers whose auxiliary vessels are limited are, in the opinion of that power, materially affected by new construction by any nation whose auxiliary program is not limited by the treaty, that power will notify the other two of the amount and kind of building it requires. Thereupon these other powers shall be entitled to make a proportionate increase in the same categories."

D. A. R. OPPOSITION TO HOOVER ON LEAGUE COURT STIRS CAPITAL

ALL FOREIGN ALLIANCES ASSAILED

London Naval Treaty Also Is Scored by Daughters at Convention

By FULTON LEWIS
Universal Service

Washington, April 17—Opposition to President Hoover's stand on the League Court and the disarmament treaty, voted by the 39th congress of the D. A. R., caused much speculation here today among political observers.

The Daughters, meeting here in convention, went on record as opposing all European entanglements, America's entrance into the League of Nations, the League Court, or any consultative pact. At the same time they declared they would oppose any pact or agreement which would bind this nation to naval reductions dangerous to adequate defense and national security.

This ringing action was taken through adoption of two reports by the assembled convention. Both were greeted with rousing demonstrations of applause. They were read from the same platform on which President Hoover at the opening of the convention three nights ago urged adherence to the League Court and praised the accomplishments of the London naval conference.

AMERICAN INDEPENDENCE

The stand against European entanglements was taken when Mrs. Charles Brand, wife of Rep. Brand of Ohio, as chairman of the national committee on correct use of the flag, read the account of her stewardships during the last year.

"We must stand against involvement in European affairs and stand anew for American independence," she declared.

Reception of the statement was in sharp contrast to the perfunctory applause with which the multitudes greeted the speech of President Hoover Monday evening. Mrs. Brand was frequently interrupted by vigorous expression of approval and the adoption of the report was marked with spontaneous enthusiasm.

The declaration against naval disarmament came in the afternoon session, and like the expressions of Mrs. Brand, was unexpected, being contained in the report of Mrs. Fred C. Morgan, chairman of the committee on legislation in Congress.

PROTESTS SWAPPING

"Our position as to material construction of naval defence has not changed in the year just passed," Mrs. Morgan began, "but as far as sentiment goes we feel more firmly convinced as the days go by, that if we are to maintain our proud position among the nations of the world, we must have adequate naval resources to protect our extensive coastline and safeguard the interests of our people.

"The enemy is not only within our gates, but without and we do not feel that the time has come for us to scrap our ships and render ourselves defenseless as a nation in face of the present conditions of war unrest.

"We, as an organization, together with the world in general, have been awaiting the outcome of the peace parley in London and until satisfactory conclusions are reached, we had rather go forward with equipment sufficient to meet any emergency than take a chance that the millenium is close at hand."

Cardinal Pontificates at Blessing of Holy Oils at Cathedral

HUB CATHOLICS COMMEMORATE LAST SUPPER

Throngs at Holy Week Services; Cardinal, at Cathedral, Blesses Oils

With Cardinal O'Connell pontificating at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, Holy Thursday services with the blessing of holy oils and processions to altars of repose, opened today throughout the Catholic archdiocese.

Assisted by a dozen priests and seminarians, His Eminence celebrated the solemn pontifical mass at 9 o'clock.

In every Catholic church in the diocese, thousands of persons attended the ceremonies and witnessed the solemn processions from the main sanctuaries to the beautifully decorated altars of repose where the Blessed Sacrament will repose until tomorrow, Good Friday.

The long service at the Cathedral, required for the blessing of the oils, was followed by trips of priests from every parish to receive the parish allotment of oils that received the Cardinal's blessing.

The purpose of the procession, with the transference of the Blessed Sacrament to the altar of repose, takes the Sacrament from the main altar until after the celebration of the mass of the pre-sanctified with no consecration of the Blessed Sacrament.

Early in the afternoon thousands of Catholics started on the annual visits to seven churches, following a pious custom of years. The seemingly endless stream will continue through the evening, as in years before, until the churches are closed for the night, about 10 o'clock.

Rome Celebrates the Feast of the Eucharist

Rome, April 17 (AP)—The bells of St. John Lateran, "mother church of Christendom," rang out in joyous peans this morning, answered by those of all Rome's 400 churches on the occasion of commemoration of Holy Thursday, feast of the institution of the Eucharist, recalling the last supper of Christ with the apostles.

What is believed to be the table used at that epoch-marking repast was brought forth from its repository and exposed for veneration. Two skulls, regarded as those of SS. Peter and Paul also were on view, as well as a reputed portion of the pillar to which Christ was bound when scourged in the house of the high priest.

In 1928, he added, the association appropriated $10,000 for the prohibition referendum.

Sen. Robinson, Republican, Indiana, remarked the association had collected $182,000 during the first two months of this year and $152,000 had been contributed from Delaware, New York, Pennsylvania and Illinois.

Curran said the five states he mentioned had repealed state enforcement laws.

"LOBBYING FOOLISH."

He reiterated that his organization did no "lobbying" in Washington.

"Does that mean you do lobbying outside of Washington?" Walsh asked.

Curran said the organization sometimes sent men to State capitals to inquire into prohibition legislation.

"I think it would be foolish to lobby in Washington," he asserted.

Curran said the association maintained two offices in Washington—one for the secretary and another for William H. Stayton, chairman of the board.

Questioned by Sen. Walsh (D), Montana, as to whether the association compiled statistics concerning the number of persons killed by prohibition agents, he replied:

"We do, and it seems to us a considerable number."

"Have you ever reported that the person killed was shot while engaged in violating the law and endeavoring to resist arrest?" Walsh, a dry, demanded.

Curran said government reports had been used.

HEARS STATE LISTED.

Senator Walsh, who is running for re-election, sat nearby when Curran enumerated Montana in the list of states.

Chairman Caraway asked Curran if his association would work against Walsh.

"I think that is our business," Curran retorted.

Pressed by Caraway to answer the question, Curran said he did not know what action would be taken in Montana. He had said yesterday his organization would not support a dry.

$500 OFFER FOR MISSING GIRL

Calais, Me., April 17—A reward of $500 for the discovery dead or alive of Rachael Boles, pretty 25-year-old Calais girl, who disappeared on March 28, was offered by the municipal authorities of St. Stephens, N. B., today.

In the meantime the girl's father Stewart Boles, assisted by provincial police and a group of 50 volunteers renewed their search for the young woman.

After attending a movie with a girl friend on the night of March 28, Rachael started for the home of her employer, G. H. Harper, on Weston Hill, St. Stephen, which is just across the St. Croix river from this city. She was never seen again.

A bank book with a small deposit recorded and clothing belonging to the girl are still in her room in the Harper home and for this reason police are paying little attention to a theory that she had eloped.

Civic Leaders Praise Tax Cut Plan

Other forms of taxation for those better suited to contribute were suggested by civic and business leaders today as a means of relieving the wage earner of the burden imposed by the present State income tax.

These suggestions are in accord with the Boston Evening American program to reduce the tax on the "little fellow."

Some of the statements follow:

William J. Patron, candidate for district-attorney:

"I heartily endorse the campaign of the Boston Evening American to relieve the oppressive burdens under which the small wage earner is struggling.

"There is no reason why those whose station in life has given them greater advantage should not assume some of the burden which is placed on the shoulders of the low-salaried workers. Many now live on unearned incomes which are the fruit of the labor of these small wage earners."

Dean A. W. McLean, Portia Law School:

"I am in favor of higher exemption for those earning small salaries, who have dependent children. I do not favor eliminating the income tax altogether, as there are many who can well afford to pay. There should be some tax, as it is of advantage to the people as a whole. I have always been in favor of more sales taxes, that is taxes on various goods. These are so small that they are usually paid without a thought. Theoretically, an increased taxation of this type should cut down the income tax to a great extent."

Mrs. Curtis Guild:

"I approve any effort which has for its purpose the reduction of taxes on earned incomes of less than $5000. I certainly give my whole-hearted and unqualified endorsement to the present drive."

Bootleg Census Job That Men Feared Done by Woman

Arkansas City, Ark., April 17 (AP)—A demure little woman who as a census enumerator set out for Big Island, scene of frequent liquor raids, came back today with her book filled with names and an assertion that the island people need more Bible and schools and fewer revnue agents.

Mrs. Clara Ross, who accepted the census assignment in the face of reports from Tennessee that men had declined similar jobs on islands in the Mississippi river, said the people of Big Island entertained her "royally" and that she questioned all but two persons.

These two, she said, were newcomers who feared she was a "revenoo-er."

GRILL DONOVAN ON QUIGLEY

Whalen and Donovan an agreement was reached to boost his bid to $13,500 so the mayor could get a "cut" of $13,500.

The witness said the only talk he heard about graft was when Haley engaged him as councel to go to an East Boston bank and borrow $5300 on real estate security to pay to Quigley.

Asked if he did not think it was inconsistent with his membership in the bar to assist Haley in raising money to bribe Quigley, the witness replied that never to his own knowledge had the money been raised.

He said he was retained as attorney to inform the president of the bank that a real estate transfer was made.

Donovan said he later went to the county registry and made a transfer of property from a man named Buckley to Haley's sister, for which he was paid by Buckley. He had nothing further to do with the matter, he said.

VISITED NIGHT CLUB

He saw nothing inconsistent in accompanying Haley to a Back Bay night club two hours after Haley was alleged to have assaulted Whalen on his sick bed.

Under redirect examination by Attorney Deland, Donovan admitted his visits to Haley's home were inspired for the purpose of getting information for Mayor Whalen.

"Mayor Whalen asked me if he should go to Haley's house at his invitation," he said. "I said, 'Sure, go on down. Listen to all he's got to say and get all you can about his relationship with Quigley.'"

Asked if he had ever talked with any of the petitioners, Donovan said George C. Best had called at his office.

"SURE, GET THE EVIDENCE"

"Best told me," he said, "that he signed the petition, but could not read it, and it was not read to him. He made an affidavit to that effect."

Donovan denied the affidavit was obtained by him or Mayor Whalen through promise of reward or threat of punishment. He also denied he or Whalen intimidated any other petitioners or sought to draw them off by promises of reward.

The next witness was Twomey. He testified he arrived at his figure of $41,500 for the contract after careful estimate of the job, and had no knowledge that Haley had bid $43,500. He denied participating in a conference with Whalen concerning the amount of his bid and denied any talk of a "cut."

HUNT KIDNAPERS

Hundreds of men, including all available federal troops, agrarians, ranchers and employes of the Transcontinental Fruit Company, were in the field today in an effort to run down the kidnapers.

With the report of the capture of Leonard B. Cassidy of Sutton st. by four Mexicans, Peabody Post of the American Legion, ordered an immediate meeting today to adopt resolutions to send to the State Department at Washington.

Cassidy was employed by the Transcontinental Fruit Co., a subsidiary to the United Fruit Co., according to a statement issued by the latter at its Boston office.

MOTHER IS ILL

The legion action followed the news of the kidnaping received by Cassidy's sick mother, Mrs. Catherine Cassidy who lives here with her husband, two daughters and three sons.

"I pray that his life will be saved," Mrs. Cassidy said today.

"He speaks Spanish fluently and that may help him out of his present predicament. It is a terrible suspense for us all here."

Later the family was delighted to hear of his release.

Cassidy was graduated from Peabody grammar schools and left Peabody high school in 1917 after two years of the course. Later he attended a commercial school from which he was graduated.

He was employed by the Mexican banana company through his connection with the United Fruit Co., the latter said in its statement issued today.

For two days strong northeast winds shoved the waters up over the shore line like a broom and summer property between here and Detroit, and especially at Point Lace, Toledo suburb in Maumee bay, was flooded. Many families were forced to retreat to higher ground.

BUYING POWER IS KEY, HE SAYS

Portland, Me., April 17.—American prosperity is built upon the purchasing power of the American people, former Governor Ralph O. Brewster declared before the Central Labor Union of Portland.

"Protection of American markets," he said, "and American standards and American prosperity is the chief American job today for everyone who believes in America's mission for the world."

The former governor pointed out to the labor men the great change that has come in the relations between capital and labor over those that existed at the beginning and in the early part of the century, and he told his listeners American capital and organizing genius may some day convert the world to the American system.

"Organized labor in Maine may find a certain grim humor in the situation. Control of production by curtailment of the hours of labor has long seemed to labor a necessary accomplishment of the advance of the machine.

"Now farmers are becoming manufacturers as the American farm is mechanized. In the old days there was an equipment investment on a wheat farm of $53 per worker.

"With whatever concern New England Yankees may view certain of the recent policies adopted under great pressure by the farm board for farm relief, all thoughtful Americans may agree that organized control of all of our productive machinery grows more and more essential in the interest of all alike."

Summons were issued through through the sheriff's office. At the same time, however, Judge Burton advised against arrest of the defendants before the hearing is held Wednesday, April 30. On behalf of the mining industry in Illinois he urged that the entire controversy be disposed of promptly.

GOOD TEETH DEPEND UPON FOOD WE EAT

Also Important to Choose Food That Will Exercise Gums

Dental troubles can be minimized if the diet includes plenty of fresh vegetables and fruits. Aside from the beneficial effects derived from the valuable minerals, vitamins and roughage in these foods, the exercise in chewing them keeps the gums healthy.

Regarding this latter point, raw cabbage, lettuce, celery and apples are especially favored by dentists. These may be eaten by themselves or combined in inviting salads.

Shredded raw cabbage is most enjoyable when served with a French dressing in which a dash of sugar is included. The sugar modifies the combined harshness of the salt, pepper and vinegar, and when blended with the oil the result is delicious.

Cooked vegetables such as turnips, string beans, carrots, spinach and peas are also more palatable when flavored with sugar. A dash of sugar to a pinch of salt is a good rule. Dentists as well as doctors approve the use of sugar as a flavor because it makes essential foods more palatable. Good food promotes good health. The Sugar Institute.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

Something to Think About

Editor Boston American:

It is time someone called attention to the inequalities of the Massachusetts Income Tax law. When you make out the Federal tax you multiply it by five or six and that is the State figure.

Take the family trying to educate children. At 18 expenses increase but the exemption is dropped. If a child happens to be 18 on January 2 this year the exemption ceases. Yet they could remedy the excise tax on automobiles with an emergency preamble to divide it into months. Why not a monthly basis on the exemption in income tax, that as a matter of fact should be made 21 years? It penalizes education.

This year the election will be fought out on two issues—prohibition and excessive taxation. The Democratic party can win both the State and United States senatorship tickets if it will get facts about taxation crushing people here, and as in the case of Mr. Davis, driving people into other states.

It is an easy matter to spend other people's money, and as long as it is thumb-screwed out of the people, those at the State House find ways to use it.

Last year a commission was appointed to study taxation. It made a report. Will you please ask your State House reporter what has been done in the way of legislation? And publish the facts. The 500,000 no votes on a gas tax a few years ago showed how voters felt when aroused.

Yet now motorists have three taxes on their cars—the excise, registration and gasoline tax, practically all for the same purpose, use of the highways.

Illinois Supreme Court declared a gas tax similar to ours unconstitutional based on both State and Federal Constitutions.

If someone were to try out in the courts our three motor taxes, many believe at least one would be declared unconstitutional. Keep at it.

Respectfully,

D. K. P.

Backs Hub as Gold Star Embarkation Point

Editor Boston American:

I want to commend you for your excellent editorial of April 10th and give you the assurance that our organization supports the idea contained in that sterling address.

Boston is the home of patriots in great numbers in all wars. It marked many times the parting place of mother and son, wife and husband, father and child. For many of the women who will go to France to be for a moment near their departed loved ones it is rich in sentimental memories.

Boston evokes perhaps tear dimmed, but nevertheless impressed and loved thoughts of the years when many of these men were alive.

Apart from all this, but assuredly not without giving it worthy consideration, Boston is the logical debarkation point, both from a point of time, expense and convenience to the Gold Star Mothers making the trip to Europe, and in addition it will be far better for these mothers to forego too much train travel and allow them to get on the boat as quickly as possible.

Sincerely yours,
MAX SINGER,
Commander.

Questions for Women to Answer

Editor Boston American:

I have read with delight answers in your letter column about women spending more money for their makeup than their husbands. Of course, there are many wives where my contention fails. But as a widower I have several other questions to put forward.

"How many women do you know who can sit perfectly still or stand perfectly motionless?"

"With how many do you talk who will allow you to finish a sentence without interrupting?"

"How many whose eyes are not constantly roving?"

"How many who are not always in a hurry?"

"How many will hold conversations in front of an entrance and will not budge an inch to let you pass?"

"How many say 'I must go,' and then stand on the threshhold of your home, talking over half an hour in the cold?"

Strike me but hear me.

WIDOWER.

Urges Protection for Pedestrians

Editor Boston American:

The suggestion in any future construction of state highways and roads maintained by the Metropolitan District Commission that sidewalks for pedestrians be provided is a good one. This is said in the face of the increasing danger on country roads where many pedestrians lose their lives by autos.

In England, a new safety reflector belt has been introduced to be used by pedestrians.

The red reflector attached to the rear of each belt can be seen by motorists 75 yards away. Always keep to the left of the oncoming traffic on highways and country roads where there are no sidewalks or paths. Never attempt to walk at night along a country road without wearing something white upon your person or carry a lantern. The new reflector belt will have red in front as well as in the rear of the person wearing it.

Tells "Flask" Story With Moral

Editor Boston American:

A speaker at a Boston meeting told this against prohibition: "A Presbyterian minister with a friend was driving to an appointment at a time when a football game was soon to begin. The friend picked up two students who desired a "lift." Soon after the students alighted, the minister noticed an object which evidently one of the students had left in the car. It was a pocket flask. In a few weeks he received a letter from the student inquiring about the flask and asking for the name of the driver. He said he wanted the flask especially because of its sentimental value as the "last gift from my father now deceased."

I draw no conclusion from this, but leave it entirely to your readers.

Thanks American for Legion Editorial

Editor Boston American:

At the regular meeting of Malden Post held recently, it was unanimously voted to thank your paper for its fine editorial on membership in the American Legion, which appeared in a recent issue of your paper.

Very truly yours,
LINTON W. SILLIKER,
Post adjutant.

It's a Tariff of Words, Too

Editor Boston American:

Why is tariff legislation so slow? Chairman Smoot of the finance committee told the Senate a short time ago that the debate on the tariff has filled 2628 pages of the Congressional Record.

It is estimated that 4,219,200 words have been spoken in the Senate on the bill and this flow of words costs at the rate of $50 a page in the Record, amounting in all to $131,300 for this alone.

Democrats are credited with 1,772,800 words, Republicans with 1,265,800 and insurgents with 1,180,600.

Some sneer at women in their organizations, talking so much on national and international questions, but let me tell your readers there is not one woman's organization in the United States that can compete with the United States Senate in wordy conflicts.

THE TRUTH ABOUT ORANGE-PEKOE TEA!

INDIA TEA

* TO BE SURE THAT YOU GET GENUINE INDIA TEA LOOK FOR THE MAP OF INDIA ON THE PACKAGE OF TEA YOU BUY.

MILLIONS know that 'Orange-Pekoe' is not a kind or flavor of tea…that it is only a trade name for a size of leaf. They know, too, that no two 'Orange Pekoes' are alike.

Now, tea drinkers who formerly asked for just 'Orange-Pekoe' are demanding 'INDIA Orange-Pekoe.' Because India grows the finest tea in the world. When you buy tea… look for the Map of India on the package of tea you buy.

THIRD N. E. AIR SCHOOL OPENS IN MAINE

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

New England's third resident flying school will open on June first at Portland Airport, Portland, Me., and will be operated by the Curtiss-Wright Flying Service.

This will be the second school of its kind to be opened by this one company. Skyways, Inc., also has a resident school at Marston's Mills, Barnstable, which is open all year round.

The Portland school will be under the direction of Robert D. Coath, manager of the station for Curtiss-Wright. According to Coath, 20 students have already been signed for the first course, with 40 other applications pending.

Two pilots will be used for instruction of special students in the school, with two more pilots added to the roster to take care of the regular students, and the field operations. Hazen Bean and R. V. Carlton will teach the school students. The other pilots have not as yet been chosen.

Portland Airport is authorized by the Department of Commerce, Aeronautics branch, to operate approved flying schools, the only other one in New England being Brainard Field, Hartford.

A flying boat will be added to the fleet of ships operated at Portland, with a boat pilot chosen from some other Curtiss airport. This boat will be sent out barnstorming over the countryside, hitting the summer resorts, as well as being used for cross-country work.

FLIERS SAVE 3 CAPE FISHERS

Provincetown, April 17 (AP)—Three fishermen were safe at home today after rescue had come to them out of the skies.

Helplessly drifting to sea 25 miles off shore in their crippled power dory, their distress signals were seen by Lieut. Norman M. Nelson and Raymond Hurley while doing patrol duty yesterday, landed in a choppy sea, and on learning the plight of the trio flew to two other boats six miles away and directed them to the rescue.

The fishermen are Capt. John Phillips; his son, John Phillips, Jr., and Victor Viegas, all of Provincetown.

TAKE UP TARIFF SUNDRIES LIST

Washington, April 17 (AP)—Having agreed to place hides, leathers and shoes on the protective list and to increase the duties on leather gloves of all descriptions, the congressional tariff bill conferees went to work today with prospects of completing adjustment of differences over all rates except those reserved for votes in the House.

Only seven rate disputes had been passed over for future decision when the conference groups took up the last half of the sundries schedule.

The rates postponed for future action are on sugar, casein, cement, lumber, shingles, narrow laces and silver ores and bullion. The lace rates were expected to be decided today.

The others, save probably silver, will be voted upon in the House before final conference action.

Going Back To First Principles...

SIXTY-FOUR years ago, James Coward began his business in a little shop in Greenwich Street, in old New York. He established his business on the high principle of making the most comfortable shoes for men, women and children that could be bought anywhere. He visualized a shoe which would meet the highest ideals of comfort; a shoe which would be a joy to the wearer during active working hours as well as in those pleasant hours of leisure.

James Coward worked diligently to attain his ambition ... He worked long, lonely hours, far into the night, and as time passed, the fame of Coward Shoes spread. People came from far and wide to get his shoes. His business grew, and finally, he was compelled to call in assistants; and he instilled in these assistants the same high standards of shoe designing, to which he himself had so conscientiously adhered.

From that day to this every shoe which bears the name of Coward has been designed in accordance with James Coward's First Principle of Comfort . . . designed by the very men James Coward trained.

Coward children's shoes are designed to guide growing feet to Comfort.

Coward women's shoes are designed to couple Comfort with beauty.

Coward men's shoes are designed for hard wear, sure support and the Comfort that comes only from a carefully constructed shoe.

If you want foot comfort, try a pair of Coward Shoes and see for yourself how thoroughly comfortable they are.

I had to laugh. I hadn't had a good laugh since before I was caught short in the market. For 15¢? For 15¢ you couldn't buy even a piccolo solo!

But then I heard the record played, right alongside a 75¢ one.

That's when I became interested in the business!

I listened to six of these Hit-of-the-Week Records, and if there's any difference between them and the kind I plunk down 75¢ for, I must be wearing ear muffs.

These records are one-sided. You can buy the music you really want without plunking down good dough for a dud on the reverse side.

And they don't break! I took one home. I sat on it. I hit it with a hammer. We used it as a cocktail tray. Even my pre-war (that is, "pre" the next war) stuff couldn't scar it. And then the cook fried an egg on it. It played just the same. There's not a break in a boxful!

They're made of Durium, folks, and that's the whole secret. Durium was invented by Dr. H. T. Beans, professor of chemistry at Columbia University. He told me the technical name and it made me dizzy, but, anyhow, the stuff looks something like brown patent leather.

With the old type of record, a man and a machine can turn out 700 a day. With Durium, a man and a machine can turn out 70,000.

Now your money can buy music instead of expensive material! That's why Hit-of-the-Week Records can sell for 15¢!

But that's not all. There are more reasons why this is the biggest thing that ever hit the phonograph business.

Only one record will be made each week, and that will be a hit that has proved itself on the stage, and over the radio, and on the dance floor.

Flo Ziegfeld, Vincent Lopez and I will act as a music jury to pick out the most popular piece of music every week.

Then it will be recorded by one of the best orchestras that money can hire.

Every record a hit! No flops admitted here!

That's why you can buy Hit-of-the-Week Records without bothering to hear them beforehand. You just know that each one's a wow.

You can buy these records AT ANY NEWSSTAND as easily as buying a magazine. Get yours today.

DR. PIERCE HITS BACK AT CRITIC OF CHAPLAINS

Washington, April 17 (AP)—The Rev. Peter Ainslie of Baltimore today continued to preach noon-day Lenten sermons at the First Congregation Church here in spite of his controversy with the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Jason Noble Pierce, on whether ministers of the gospel are justified in serving as army chaplains.

Dr. Ainslie offered to cancel his engagement, but no action was taken.

The controversy was renewed in a letter from Dr. Pierce in which he refused to lead a movement to withdraw chaplains from the army, a step the Baltimore clergyman had suggested. Dr. Pierce is an army chaplain and saw wartime service.

The dispute arose Monday from a sermon Dr. Ainslie preached, in which he said there was as much justification for having chaplains in speakeasies as in the army and navy, especially because war has been outlawed by the Kellogg treaty.

An exchange of letters followed, and in the last of these Dr. Pierce said armies are provided by the Constitution and the National Defense Act and that the latter was not repealed when the Kellogg treaty was signed.

He added that the ratification of the Kellogg treaty "no more assures peace than the enactment of the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act assure abstinence from liquor."

The first Congregational church was the church of President and Mrs. Coolidge throughout their stay in Washington.

Defendant Wins in Balm Action

Providence, April 17—A verdict in favor of William H. Morris, 68, of Pawtucket, who was sued by his sister-in-law, Mrs. Maria Livesey, 63, of Attleboro, Mass., for alleged breach of promise to marry, was returned by a superior court jury. The jury was out a little more than an hour.

Mrs. Livesey sought to recover $5000 for breach of promise and compensation for services performed as housekeeper following the death of her sister, Morris' wife.

12,000 Homeless in Fire on Island

Iloilo, P. I., April 17—Fabrica and Sagay, industrial towns of Negros Island, were reported today to be still fighting a disastrous fire which had been raging for 36 hours.

More than 12,000 persons were homeless and it was estimated that property damage would mount above $2,500,000.

The number of dead could not be ascertained to any degree of certainty.

Pasha Is Importing Water for Coffee

Berlin, April 17 (AP)—Kemaleddin Sami Pasha, Turkish ambassador, has water shipped from Vienna in large bottles and all coffee served at the embassy is made with it. He believes it makes the most palatable Turkish coffee.

JAIL KLUXER IN CANADIAN CASE

Toronto, April 17 (AP)—A Ku Klux Klansman who appealed from a fine of $50 for wearing a mask in public today was under a three months' jail sentence imposed by the appellate court.

H. A. Phillips, the defendant, was arrested for being one of a mob of 50 masked men who raided the home of Ira Johnson at Oakville, Ont., and removed a girl, Isobel Jones, who was living there. Phillips at his hearing said he was a member of the Ku Klux Klan.

The case was the first under a recent Ontario law forbidding the wearing of masks in public.

Phillips appealed a fine imposed in magistrate's court and a counter-appeal was taken up by the crown prosecutor on the ground that the sentence was too lenient.

Variety in Owners of Schooner Irma A

The destruction of the Boston fishing schooner Irma A. by fire, which followed two explosions off Nantucket Tuesday and which almost cost the lives of her crew of seven men, brought to light the fact that the little craft was owned by a rather unusual combination of business men, one a physician, another an undertaker and the third a garage man.

Her owners were Dr. Robert Bonney of 7 Princeton st., Charles A. Rollins, an undertaker, of 300 Meridian st., and Fred F. Hodgkins, proprietor of the Central Garage on Liverpool st.

Laundryman Foils Robber in Battle

A West Medford Chinese laundryman won a decision over a would-be robber in his shop in West Medford st. early today, retaining a soft hat and tie as souvenirs of the occasion. According to Yee Chee, the laundryman, his assailant was glad to withdraw without fulfilling his intention of obtaining $5.

The man entered the shop just before closing time and demanded money. When this was refused he started for the cash drawer, only to encounter the laundryman. In the battle that followed Yee Chee was victorious.

SECOND COUPLE TO WED IN AIR

New Bedford, April 17—As plans for an airplane wedding on Easter Sunday were being spoiled here, announcement came from Pawtucket that another young couple plan to be wed in the air on the same date.

The airplane marriage plans of Miss Eva May Bousquet, 18, and Napoleon J. Tetreault, Jr., 28, were upset when Rev. Charles S. Thurber, pastor of Seamen's Bethel, notified the Sound Airways, Inc., that he would be unable to officiate at the wedding as he had originally agreed.

"Marriage is too sacred an institution to be entered into in such fashion," he said.

In the meanwhile, in Pawtucket, Miss Mabel P. Denver of Seekonk, Mass., and Charles E. Cherry of Pawtucket, completed their plans to be married on Easter Sunday in a specially chartered six-passenger plane from Boston.

Sample Dresses and Car Stolen

While William Collier, of 63 Cheney st., Roxbury, a salesman for a Boston dry goods firm, was calling on a customer in St. Peter st., Salem, thieves stole his sedan, in which were several dresses and women's imported undergarments, valued at $700.

Police were notified and Inspectors John Harkins and Patrick J. Lehan were dispatched to find the missing car.

TWO KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

Hays, Kan., April 17 (AP)—Fog, the enemy of aviation, has claimed at least two additional lives, the result of a plane crash here yesterday.

A. J. (Steve) Lacey, 27, Wichita, Kan., test pilot, and exhibition flyer, and his wife, 20, died in the fall of a plane piloted by Lacey. Russell Guild, 22, of Holyoke, Col., is in a critical condition in a Hays hospital. Dr. H. C. Hill, also of Holyoke, the fourth occupant of the plane, less seriously hurt, also is receiving hospital treatment.

ONLY WANTED SON TO BEHAVE

When Mrs. Emma Sykes of Sumner st., Somerville, had her 16-year-old son Benjamin brought into the Middlesex Superior Criminal Court to have him sent to the State Industrial school at Shirley, she had no idea that she was trying to send him to a reform school, she said today.

"Because Bennie, who is really a good boy, liked to sing popular songs loudly with his pals, late at night outside around the corner from our home, folks persuaded me that he was going to be a bad boy," Mrs. Sykes explained.

"I feel pretty badly over it," Benjamin himself said. "I never thought there was any harm in anything we boys did. It wasn't deliberate meanness and I did not break any laws."

Rockefeller Coal Co. Sued for $10,000,000

Philadelphia, April 17—A suit for $10,000,000 for alleged breach of contract was filed in Common Pleas Court here by the Western Maryland Railway Co. against the Consolidated Coal Co.

The majority of the coal company stock is owned by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and interests controlled by him, it is said.

LEAGUE COURT HIT BY VOTERS, PRESS SAYS

Washington, April 17.—"A [illegible] of Washington [illegible] papers of [illegible] Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick [illegible]

"The voters in every instance where foreign entanglements have been an issue have repudiated plans to involve the United States in European affairs," is the gist of a statement from one leading dress.

[illegible] Wisconsin [illegible]

Capitol Times, Madison

Illinois returns blow to World Court entry.

"The advocates of the adherence of the United States to the World Court were given a severe jolt in the primary returns from Illinois. The dominant issue in the latter campaign which has ended in an overwhelming victory for Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick was the World Court. Senator Deneen defended our entrance to the court under reservations and the battle of ballots in our neighboring state revolved around this question. Mrs. McCormick was opposed to the World Court.

"The American people have not forgotten that the Treaty of Versailles is the parent of the League of Nations and the World Court and that this whole international machinery was set up by clever Europena diplomats to consolidate and nail down the loot which European powers got out by the war. They have sensed the fact that our adherence to the World Court would be the first step in our eventual entry into the League of Nations.

"The people of Illinois have overwhelmingly registered a protest against the World Court and the League of Nations."

Kenosha Evening News

"The primary was interesting from other standpoints. An issue had been made of the World Court question, Mrs. McCormick opposing American adherence while Senator Deneen was forced to defend his vote in support of it on the grounds of party regularity. This was played up as the chief issue of the campaign and some papers who are opposed to America's adherence to the court have taken the result as largely emphasizing that point.

"But closer study of the situation indicates that there were other issues, some of them not so apparent, which were really more vital in the campaign. The World Court issue was the open one but the others perhaps the more interesting ones to the voters.

"A few years ago the World Court was made an issue in a Wisconsin senatorial campaign when Senator Blaine, then Governor Blaine, defeated Senator Lenroot. Governor Blaine opposed the adherence to the World Court. Senator Blaine defended it. Ostensibly it was the main issue but voters in Wisconsin know that there were other questions which interested the voters and which probably were more responsible for the defeat of Senator Lenroot than the World Court issue. So in the Illinois case it is possible that opponents of the World Court are likely to make too much of the recent vote there."

Racine Journal News

"The Republicans of Illinois have made it very plain that they do not care to have the United States hooked up with the World Court, which, in fact, is only a side-door entrance to the League of Nations.

"Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, who made her primary campaign for United States senator on the court issue, won easily over Senator Deneen. Mrs. McCormick announced at the beginning of her campaign her opposition to the World Court and she kept the proposition before the voters to the conclusion of her campaign. Her victory came in a landslide. Her votes overwhelmed the senator. She smashed his organization in places where it was believed to be so well grounded and so solidly formed that none could move it.

"When a big state like Illinois, almost an empire within itself, thunders no in protest against entangling America in European embroilments, it is time for people elsewhere to take an inventory and undertake the task of arriving at a solution of big problems in the way desired by the people of this country. The League of Nations is no more popular in this country than it was in the days of Woodrow Wilson, who brought the idea back from Europe when he returned home from the Versailles parley.

"The American people do not want their country tied up with it, nor do they want it to become a party of any alliance resulting from it.

"Mrs. McCormick's victory and Senator Deneen's defeat are proof of this fact."

The trend toward a fitted line which is being felt throughout the mode finds a definite reaction in rain wear. Many of the latest models are indicating the higher waistline and the tapering silhouette. Several of the French couturiers now include striking [illegible] in their spring and fall collections. The hat worn is a brimmed model in green felt. The umbrella is also green, with its crook handle of a composition resembling jade in appearance.

The toothbrush may be no more valuable to our well-being than a shoe shine," stated Miss Fox. "Evidence today is tending to show the value of a toothbrush to be purely an aesthetic appreciation for cleanliness.

[illegible] "Just happened to be passing. I caught sight of you—" he explained awkwardly. [illegible]

"It's been so good to see you again, Ken." [illegible]

"To take Cecile home. You mustn't think I came on purpose. You mustn't think that, Ardeth. I had to talk to myself to get here. But she asked and I couldn't refuse without without." [illegible]

"How are you getting on, Ardeth? What do you do?" [illegible]

"Hard to believe, isn't it, Ardeth—don't let this keep you from life. You know what I mean—your own life. Just because mine's wrecked ..."

"Oh, no." [illegible]

"Well, I was beginning to think you were never coming, Ken!" [illegible]

A few nights later, as she waited [illegible]

"You don't mean that, Ardeth. You've hated seeing me. That's what they've done to you. Made you ashamed of the people you used to know. You're ashamed because you loved me once. Well, you did. You used to like to have me kiss you." [illegible]

BANCROFT IS QUIZZED ON LOVE TOPIC

THE person who [illegible] able [illegible] question [illegible] George Bancroft, the star of "Ladies Love Brutes," which is now playing at the Metropolitan [illegible] strange [illegible] Bancroft [illegible]

"Well, I'll have to answer that by asking you one: 'Who is the lady?' and still another, 'Who is the brute?', and finally 'What are the circumstances under which their romance takes place?' You see, these things are most important before I can give you a direct answer to your question.

"Now for instance we know that not all ladies love all brutes, and it is quite likely that there are some ladies who could not love any man who is a brute. Then again, she might learn to love a brute and in the loving change him from a brute. But that's getting in rather deep, isn't it? But you can see what I mean. Circumstances—that's the big question. How and when and where did they meet? Was his brutality directed toward her or was she the one person who escaped it?

"And then again, there are many kinds of brutes—some are brutal to their fellow men, some to their inferiors only, some to animals, some to women, some to the world in general. Few of the so-called 'brutes' are actually brutal in all things—they all have a sentimental side to their natures and if we succeed in finding that we discover that, after all, they are amazingly like the general run of folks."

How I coaxed him to eat

"ONCE I was worried. Mealtime was getting on my nerves. I prepared many appetizing dishes, but John simply would not eat—just minced at his food. Perhaps sometimes a little grouchy. I began to fear he was 'slipping.' What was I to do? Love, home, happiness, business success—all depended upon an improvement in his condition. The blood tonic idea suggested itself to me. My Druggist recommended S.S.S. He told me that S.S.S. was a great blood tonic, that it had been successful for over 100 years, that it was made from strictly fresh vegetable drugs and was beneficial to the most delicate system. Also that it would build up the blood and improve the processes by which the body is nourished. I brought home a large size bottle. John agreed to try it. Well, in just a few days I could see the difference. His improvement has been so rapid he is going to take several more bottles, and not only that, but he is now telling his friends to take S.S.S."

It is a known fact that when a man's system gets "run-down," he hasn't the resistance to ward off diseases. Loss of appetite is only a symptom. General weakness pervades the entire body. There is no desire to work or play. It is dangerous to let the red-blood-count remain below normal.

It is natural to expect, when you get your blood cells up to normal, that sluggish, let-down feeling, loss of appetite, and those skin troubles to disappear. You should get hungry again, sleep soundly, and firm flesh take the place of that which was once flabby. You should feel strong and your nerves become steady.

You owe it to yourself and friends to try S.S.S. Its tonic effects will surprise you.

S.S.S.

S.S.S. is daily helping people to regain their strength. Thousands of users have testified to its benefits in unsolicited letters of gratitude. It promotes a keen appetite, gives vitality to the body, clears the skin and wards off disease. All Drug Stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical. © S.S.S. Co.

A GOOD GASOLINE MUST BE

BALANCED

SNAP the switch—touch the starter button—you're away! Then drive with a new confidence in the power and the pick-up of your car. And that's not all. Note the added joy and economy of increased mileage that you get from Atlantic, the balanced Gasoline

Some other fuel may give you a quick start yet evaporate so rapidly as to give low mileage. Others may have the mileage but lack the "pep" and power on the hills. Only in Atlantic Gasoline will you find the Balance which makes an ideal motor fuel

Atlantic is a balanced gasoline. And by "balanced" we mean—an unbroken series of boiling point fractions which assures not only quick starting but plenty of power and mileage.

The OFFICE WIFE

The Most Discussed Novel of the Day by FAITH BALDWIN

A Story of Some Folks Who Might Be in Your Office —or Your Husband's

What Has Gone Before

WHEN [illegible] Eaton, head of the Eaton Advertising Agency, [illegible] the office of Timothy [illegible] president, and [illegible] Anne Murdock, [illegible] secretary [illegible]. Shortly after Anne settled at Janet's [illegible] so that he can [illegible] upon her speed and [illegible], and after he had signed it asked on a sudden impulse: "Will you be busy this evening, Miss Murdock?"

Anne thought of an engagement with Ted O'Hara, but answered immediately: "No, Mr. Eaton."

Miss Andrews [illegible] "I'd a range things [illegible] if you can stay and help me for a hour or two."

To work—with [illegible]! [illegible] A woman in business [illegible] hold her job [illegible]. Well, if she [illegible]

Anne [illegible] respond.

CHAPTER VI

ANNE [illegible] mother a [illegible] into her bedroom. Mrs. Murdock was smiling [illegible] what nonsense the girl [illegible], but her eyes were [illegible] ful. What was the world coming to when healthy, pretty girls preferred typewriters to babies?

But perhaps the right man hadn't come along yet. With this age-old solution for consolation, Mrs. Murdock went back to bed.

Anne undressed in semi-darkness. Kathleen was sound asleep in the bed next to her own, one round arm above her dark head, the gardenia texture of her cheek faintly flushed. "She's [illegible]," Anne thought, with some misgiving.

"It's a fine thing to marry young and climb the ladder with your man."

But if a girl wanted a ladder of her own, wanted [illegible] unhindered to the top? And if [illegible] she wanted her man wouldn't it be one who had already made his way, unaided, a man with strength and tremendous driving power?

The time was passing when girls who came into contact with men, men of established position, of vision and capabilities, were willing to marry those who stood at the bottom of the ladder.

"We set high standards," thought Anne drowsily, "nowadays."

Calls on Janet
Anne Consults Her on the Office Work

A day or so later Anne telephoned Janet Andrews and finding she was still in town made an engagement with her for that evening.

Janet, as trimly utilitarian at home as she was in the office, went with her around the corner to one of those dimly lighted basements which provide music and a plate dinner.

"I want to consult you," Anne told her, over coffee. "Oh, just office routine. Every man has his own way of wanting things run. I hate to make more mistakes than I can help."

She asked her questions and Janet answered, grudgingly at first, and then, as she looked at Anne's friendly face, more openly.

"Is he well?" was what Janet wished to know in her turn as they walked back to her home.

"The chief?" Anne looked at her, astonished. "Why, I suppose so. He seems fine."

"He gets overtired," Janet explained, "and then he sometimes takes cold. When he works in the office at night I generally get one of the porters to go out and bring in malted milk or something. He doesn't know where it comes from half the time, but he drinks it just the same."

"I see," said Anne, and made a mental note. Surely, she thought, the chief could take care of himself. But of course if he were used to these extra attentions she'd certainly see to it that they were forthcoming.

Janet went on talking, warning Anne against certain importunate callers who had a way of trying to get past the [illegible], telling her a little [illegible] of Eaton's likes and dislikes.

Anne thought [illegible]. "I suppose he [illegible] to be coddled like all the others. I wonder if he really [illegible]."

Somehow it didn't fit in with the mental picture she had of the man, a picture which she had carried about with her for three years, which she often looked at with admiration and by which she made, unconsciously, many comparisons.

Janet's flat was well furnished but wholly lacking in charm. Anne talked as they sat there together while Janet indulged in her solitary relaxation of incessant cigarette smoking.

"Aren't you going away?"

Janet lighted another cigarette.

Funny to see her smoke, [illegible] thought Anne; she doesn't seem to be the type.

"Yes, in a day or so. I've a cousin who has a farm up near Albany. I've planned to go to her," Janet answered.

"I won't be coming back to the agency," she said slowly. "He doesn't want me."

But Janet [illegible] Anne trying to make her words and tone carry conviction, "of course you'll come back. You'll get well up there and . . . Why, the chief can't get along without you!"

Janet tried to smile. "Yes, he can," she contradicted. "He'll forget to miss me after a little. And you"—she looked directly at the younger girl—"you'll get the position, Anne. That's one reason why I've been trying to give you little hints about things it would take you a long time to learn, but which mean a lot to his comfort."

Begs Anne
Take Care of Eaton, Says Janet

Anne asked, with clever directness:

"If you should not return, would you be angry if—if I did get the job?"

"No, not angry." Janet laid one unsteady hot hand on Anne's. "Take care of him," was all she said.

Then they talked of other things until Anne rose to go. Janet went to the door with her.

"I shan't wait for my dis-

Diet Hints

Freak diets, which concentrate upon one or two foods, are dangerous to health.

Diets popular as fads in the last few years—the Hollywood diet, the milk diet, the pineapple-and-lamb-chop diet—cannot be safely followed over a long period.

Protein foods, such as eggs, fish, meat, milk and certain vegetables, because of their vitamine content, must be included in any diet. The starches and sugars can be reduced to a minimum. Fats, butter fat and oils, can be completely omitted with impunity.

No limit on the amount of vegetables to be eaten at each meal. Moderate portions of meat and fish. Either one thin slice of bread or one potato may be included in each lunch and dinner menu.

BUSH HITS BACK AT ELKINS ON OFFICERS' PAY

Asks Whether Maimed, Blinded Veteran Is Not Entitled to More Compensation

Officers are rather a preferred class of government pets or exercise a greater degree of political influence in Congress than former enlisted men, City Councilor Herman L. Bush of Roxbury said today with regard to the high compensation paid former officers with minor disabilities who also hold high salaried public and private positions.

He was replying to Lieut. Elkins of Framingham who took exception yesterday to some of Bush's remarks before the City Council.

DISABILITIES STRETCHED

"The crux of the whole question is whether an officer with a minor disability ought to receive a monthly sum far in excess of the maximum sum which a dismembered enlisted man can receive," said Bush, who lost a leg, an eye and a finger in France, besides receiving other serious wounds.

"I'll venture to state, in addition, that some of those 30 per cent disabilities for which officers are receiving as much as $281.25 a month, are stretched a trifle to bring them within the provisions of the retirement act.

I know that the rank and file of the veterans have a continual battle on their hands to establish their claims to compensation and subsequently to retain their compensation.

ANSWERS ELKINS

"It is not my intention to enter into a personal controversy with any other disabled veteran.

"However, since Lieut. Elkins sees fit to inject a personal note into the matter, let me ask him the following question:

"Do you think it is just and fair to the enlisted or drafted veteran who lost both eyes, or both hands, or both feet—or a hand and foot, or a hand and eye, or a foot and eye—to pay him $100 a month flat, with no allowance for dependents, while an officer can receive $281.25 a month for a disability for which the enlisted man would receive $30 per month?"

GOODWIN CHARGES "FIRE TRAPS" USED AS SCHOOL BUILDINGS

SAYS MONEY SPENT ONLY FOR FADS

Cites Overcrowded Schools Before Council Committee in Plea for More Funds

[illegible] Frank A. Goodwin, chairman of the Finance Commission, [illegible] today before the city council committee on appropriations.

[illegible]

[illegible]

WANTS $60,000

[illegible]

"School expenses have gone up tremendously in recent years," said Goodwin. "They jumped from $7,495,000 in 1918 to $20,307,391 in 1928.

"The school committee realized that there should be an investigation and had a survey made by nine educators which resulted in abolition of the schoolhouse commission. But its criticism of the educational end of the schools was given no publicity.

"From what I know, it is about time to investigate the educational end of the school department.

"In the past four years as a result of expenditures by the schoolhouse commission, structures have been built that would accommodate 16,192 additional pupils. The population of the schools has increased only 4287.

MONEY USED FOR SHOPS

"The net gain in seat room is 11,905 and yet there are as many portables being used in the school yards today as there were four years ago. The money instead of being used to provide better pupils. The population of the children was spent for industrial shops.

"There are about 60 wooden buildings still being used in Boston. Thirteen are of more than one story and there are no fire escapes which I believe is contrary to law.

"Eighty-four second class buildings are being used for school purposes without fire escapes, and that is contrary to law. Twenty-one buildings have a hall higher than the first floor without fire escapes, and that's against the law.

"The sum of $3,000,000 has been spent for ventilating systems in the schools which are not used."

GOODWIN RAPS COURT RULING ON AUTO BILL

Declares It Robs People of the Power of Initiative in Public Affairs

[illegible]

"Under the opinion as now rendered," he said, "it is possible for an attorney general to nullify the provisions of the Constitution permitting initiative petitions by drawing an incomplete description intentionally or otherwise. [illegible]

CHARGES REVERSE

Goodwin then charged in effect [illegible]

"Last January, after studying the bill for four or five weeks, the Supreme Court decided that it would be an apparently reasonable means to cut down the terrific toll of accidents on the highways. It seems that the court after three months finds nothing right in a bill which they then found sensible, sane and rational."

HITS FAKE CLAIMS

[illegible]

"The court says that a monopoly is odious. The Elevated has a monopoly. The Edison Co. has a monopoly. The Gas Co. has a monopoly. And yet the Supreme Court objects to this measure because it is a monopoly run by three men appointed by the government and nobody gets any profits."

For the first time in the history of the B. A. A. This drawing was made to prevent advance knowledge of numbers falling into the hands of those who are conducting a pool on the outcome of the Marathon.

"Spring Style Twins" 1930

THIS IS A TRULY WARNER YEAR

I paid $10 for the original new Close Roll Welt Brim with the High Taper Crown. Wide Silk Band. Side Bow.

A distinctive shape for the more conservative man [illegible] The original cost me $10
My exact "Style Twin" costs you . . $3.50

Today men want real Value for their Money, whether they are buying a house or a handkerchief.

It doesn't make any difference whether they are trading on Wall Street or shopping on Main Street, or looking for a hat on any other street in the U. S. A. where we have a store.

I believe this is one year when a name that represents Value is worth more than a Label that spells Price.

Last year the average man didn't consider the Value of anything but he knew the Price of everything — and was willing to pay it.

A silk binding on the edge adds the finishing Style Touch to this new Snap Down Brim with the Back Bow. The Original cost me $10
My exact "Style Twin" costs you $3.50

Our Finest Quality $5 Luxuriously Lined

It's different this year. Mr. Average Man isn't going to pay any more than is necessary for the exact "Style Twin" of the best Style shown by the Highest Price Hatter. He is not going to pay a Luxury Tax for an Expensive Label if he can get exactly the same Style, without the Label, at half the price.

Now, it's my business to Reproduce every Style Introduced by the High Price Hatters, and the "Style Twins" in my windows today explode the idea that you can get more Style, if you pay more money.

This year I am going after more business by giving more Value and I know my new Spring "Style Twins" will make this a Truly Warner Year.

Last week the total sales of the stores in the entire Truly Warner chain showed an increase of Seventy-five Percent over the corresponding week of a year ago.
This is a Truly Warner year.

OFFICE BOY: Mr. Boston, [illegible] Mr. Boston. [illegible]

[illegible]

Mr. Boston—Sharkey is already working at a camp in the White Mountains. He is roughing it, fishing and knocking over trees.

Runyon—Joe Jacobs tells me Jack will think he has [illegible] a free or a crashing [illegible] when his Max clouts him on the [illegible].

Mr. Boston—Sharkey tells me he is going to do as much for Schmeling.

Mr. Boston—How much do you think the show will draw?

Runyon—A million.

Mr. Boston—The profits of the show will help buy a lot of milk for a flock of kids.

Runyon—Mrs. William Randolph Hearst's Milk Fund committee has asked me to hand you the Fake Colliding [illegible] the Sharkey end of the match. Sharkey and Buckley [illegible] [illegible] move when they cut their percentage from 27 [illegible] to [illegible] per cent. On the basis of a million dollar gate that means $[illegible],000 extra for milk.

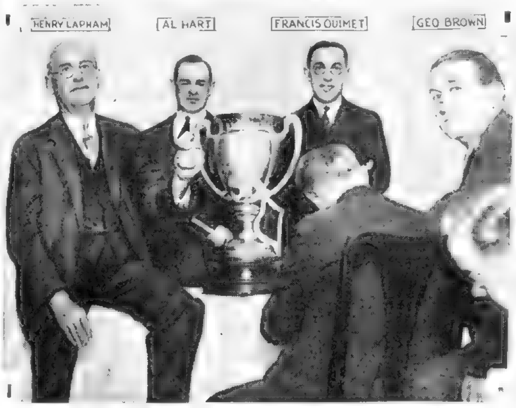
FIRST DRAWING IN HISTORY



For the first time in the history of the B. A. A. Marathon, numbers were assigned entries by lot instead of being given, as was the custom according to the regular succession in which entries were received. This drawing was made to prevent advance knowledge of numbers falling into the hands of those who are conducting a pool on the outcome of the Marathon.

"Spring Style Twins" 1930

THIS IS A TRULY WARNER YEAR

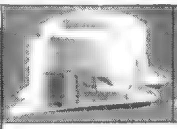
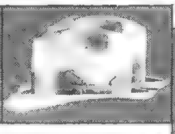
My exact "Style Twin" costs you . . . $3.50



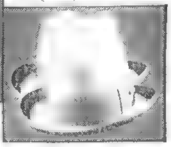
The original of this New Spring Style Silhouette—Snap Down Front—High Roll Back brim . . . on quarter cost me $10.

My exact "Style Twin" costs you . . . $3.50



Hare's Fur Felt Light Weight Crusher [illegible] Butterfly Bow Light Weight Crown Double Weight Brim. The original cost me $10.

My exact "Style Twin" costs you . . . $3.50



A distinctive shape for the more conservative man is this finely proportioned tailored welt with a wider brim. The original cost me $10.

My exact "Style Twin" costs you . . . $3.50

Today men want real Value for their Money, whether they are buying a house or a handkerchief.

It doesn't make any difference whether they are trading on Wall Street or shopping on Main Street, or looking for a hat on any other street in the U. S. A. where we have a store.

I believe this is one year when a name that represents Value is worth more than a Label that spells Price.

Last year the average man didn't consider the Value of anything but he knew the Price of everything and was willing to pay it.

A silk binding on the edge adds the finishing Style Touch to this new Snap Down Brim with the Back Bow. The Original cost me $10.

My exact "Style Twin" costs you $3.50

In Silver Pearl and Grey—Spring Tones of Tan and Brown [illegible]

Our Finest Quality $5 Luxuriously Lined

It's different this year. Mr. Average Man isn't going to pay any more than is necessary for the exact "Style Twin" of the best Style shown by the Highest Price Hatter. He is not going to pay a Luxury Tax for an Expensive Label if he can get exactly the same Style, without the Label, at half the price.

Now, it's my business to Reproduce every Style Introduced by the High Price Hatters, and the "Style Twins" in my windows today explode the idea that you can get more Style, if you pay more money.

This year I am going after more business by giving more Value and I know my new Spring "Style Twins" will make this a Truly Warner Year.

Last week the total sales of the same stores in the entire Truly Warner chain showed an increase of Seventy-five Percent over the corresponding week of a year ago.

This is a Truly Warner year.

WILCZEWSKI IS ONE-MAN TRACK TEAM

missal," she said. "I shall send in my resignation before my leave is up. I'll try for something else after a while. Meantime I've something saved."

She did not tell Anne that she had already spoken to a friend of hers, the head of a large employment agency, and that Miss Mackeye had told her:

"You won't be easy to place, Janet. You've given too much to this last job. My advice is, go out and learn to play before you look for a new one. Get outside interests—and if you can—fall in love."

Fall in love!

Janet turned back to the empty flat and started straightening chairs and cushions. Anne—Anne would get the job.

He wouldn't look at Anne, of course, not as a person, that is. He wasn't that kind. And yet, Anne with her ardent red lips and her round, slim body and pretty hands. He wouldn't be a man if he didn't look at her sometimes.

Would any man be content with just—looking?

She went into her bedroom and stared about it dully. She must plan her packing, must formulate mentally the phrases of her dignified resignation, every word of which would be a knife in her heart.

Over the daily contact, the work that was all for him, the tense waiting for his word of approbation, the shrinking from his reception of an error, the lightness in her breast when he smiled all over.

Suddenly she picked up a tall glass vase and flung it violently against the wall. As it shattered to the floor in a hundred tinkling pieces the tension broke within her and she flung herself across her bed, sobbing.

Anne, walking to the subway, thought with a decent unwillingness:

"So that's the reason!"

She knew Freud and Ellis no better than did Janet. But she needed no books to tell her what was the matter with the older woman.

"Poor thing," she thought, disturbed and with an aching pity tempered with the wholesome scorn of a youngster who has not yet been deeply stirred by life. "Poor thing. Why are women such fools?"

Couldn't they keep sex out of it save as a useful weapon? She wondered if they couldn't realize that the man was [illegible] of the [illegible]

She was in [illegible] room when Joe Brown, one of the copywriters and a friend of O'Hara's, came into the chief's office, papers in his hand and his face haggard with strain. Through the half-open door Anne heard the two men.

"Sit down, Joe," invited Eaton. "I want to talk to you about your copy for the Garden Silk people. Are you satisfied with it yourself?"

Brown's answer followed after a preceptible hesitation. "No, I'm not, Mr. Eaton," he said.

"What do you think is the matter with it?" asked Eaton. "To my mind, it's good enough routine work—solid stuff—but it hasn't any vitality. Not an atom of punch. It hasn't the quality which lifted your work for the Dayton crowd so far above the average.

"You've wonderful hunches, Joe. You've a good command of the written language.

"You've a big future. You've proved it again and again. But something has been wrong for the last month. What is it? Don't you like the work—or what?"

"I do. I'm crazy about it, but I'm shot, Mr. Eaton. My mind isn't on the job. I'm mechanical. I haven't any pep. I'm—oh, I know what's the matter, all right," he said, boyish and ill at ease and unhappy.

"What, then?"

"It's—a personal matter," Brown burst out despairingly. "Just one of those intimate things that play the duce with a man's job. I'm—I'm nearly off my head, Mr. Eaton. I can't eat. I can't sleep. I can't work." He added dully: "But I can't tell you about it. If it means the loss of my job I can't tell you. And I deserve to be fired. I've let you down badly."

Good to Eat

MAYONNAISE becomes a strictly international affair when you start varying it according to Italian, Russian, French and even Oriental suggestions. Given a basis of creamy, golden delicious mayonnaise, you can quickly give it an Italian flavor by mixing with it 2 tbsps. of cream, 2 tbsps. of chopped ripe olives, 2 tbsps. of chopped stuffed olives and 1 tsp. of chopped parsley.

For the Russian dressing, so delicious and popular on hearts of lettuce, mix together ½ cup of the mayonnaise with 2 tbsps. of chili sauce, 2 tbsps. of chopped celery, 1 tsp. of chopped pickled onions and 2 tsps. of capers. The onions may be omitted if desired and one finely chopped hard boiled egg added, with a generous sprinkling of onion salt.

MAYONNAISE DRESSING

INGREDIENTS

2 yolks of eggs or 1 whole egg.
½ tsp. of mustard.
1 tsp. salt.
Dash of pepper.
1½ cups of salad oil.
Juice of 1 lemon or same amount of vinegar.

METHOD

Have all ingredients and bowl cold. Beat egg well with Dover beater, add mustard, salt and pepper. Stir in the olive oil slowly at first. Thin with lemon juice or vinegar and add onion juice. The dressing should be jelly like. Keep very cold.

If it should separate, take a yolk of egg and pour mixture on it very slowly and beat well again.

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE.

Two Admire Same Boy

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have a very good friend and we both have a "crush" on the same boy. As we are very good friends and do not wish to break up our friendship on account of this we have come to you for advice. He does not show me any particular favor although he seems to like us both. What shall we do? We are 17 years of age. Are we too young to be thinking about boys?

ADELINE.

All three of you seem to be managing very well. Why not let the situation drift? Perhaps either girl, or both, will find someone else they like equally well. Don't break your hearts at 17.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I know a good many young men but am not keeping company with any of them. Do you think the trouble may be that my hair isn't any special color and that I don't use much makeup, because my mother discourages it? I am thinking of brightening my hair.

GOLDIE.

PRAY believe me, Goldie, that if dyeing your hair did result in bringing you more attention from men they would not be the type you would care to encourage. Any girl's hair is pretty, I think, if she washes it often, arranges it carefully and perhaps waves it a little. How about your clothes? Here is something really important. Get somebody with particularly good taste to go with you the next time you buy a dress or a hat. And if you want friends you must be gay, cheerful and natural.

THE WEEKLY STORY FOR BOYS and GIRLS

Tom Toddy and Tillie Toddy

The Melancholy Football—And Why

By UNCLE TODDY

Copyright, 1930, by [illegible]

Do you remember where we left Tom Toddy and Tillie Toddy and my young friends, Lorraine and David, last week? They were on their way to Toddy Town and they had just gone into Mr. Toddy's restaurant, to which the Entertaining Cars had carried them on their backs.

Mr. Toddy was a delightful little gentleman. He took great pains to do everything he could to please them. He was a tiny little fellow—no taller than your two little fingers placed end to end. But he seemed like a regular size man to Lorraine and David because, as you must remember, Tom and Tillie, when they said the magic words, had made Lorraine and David no bigger than your biggest finger.

When they went into Mr. Toddy's restaurant, through the little door in the tree, they thought it was quite the nicest place they had ever seen. It was all spic and span clean and it had pretty blue checked table cloths. And curtains at the windows to match.

And on each table was a can of Toddy and a bottle of milk and plenty of glasses.

The children all sat down at one of the delightful tables.

"Of course," said Tom Toddy, "we would like some Toddy and milk. But what else have you?"

"Everything," cried Mr. Toddy, sweeping his hands out in a wide circle, "everything!" he cried.

And then he broke into a little verse. And this is what he said:

"I've cakes and flakes and potted ham.
And pies, and fruits and honey;
And fine fresh currant jam and lamb,
And eggs from an Easter Bunny.

"I've pickles, pumpkins, prunes and puffs,
And dandy candy cherries,
And every kind of fancy stuffs
And bulging, big blueberries.

"I've lobsters large and lobsters small,
And figs for everybody,
But what I wot is best of all
Is a glass of milk and Toddy."

Tom Todd[illegible] and [illegible] Lorraine [illegible] heartily at [illegible] and Mr. [illegible] laughed, too.

[illegible]

"So do I," [illegible]

"So do I," said Tom [illegible]

"Hot or [illegible] it either way [illegible]

"All," he [illegible] hotter than [illegible] either way [illegible]

Well, since it was quite cool in the morning [illegible] quite chilly outside [illegible] they had quite a long walk ahead of them, the children all had their Toddy hot.

And they all felt fine when they finished it—all ready for the journey ahead of them.

"What did I tell you?" asked Mr. Toddy. "Didn't I say that Toddy is a 'meal in a glass'?"

"Yes," Lorraine answered, "but we knew that before."

"Well," said Mr. Toddy, "it doesn't do any harm to remind what you know—because how else do you know you know—?"

No one had an answer for that so they said, "Good-bye," to Mr. Toddy at the door and started on down the path toward Toddy Town.

[illegible]

"Can't we [illegible] you [illegible]?" Tom asked.

[illegible]

So [illegible] turns [illegible] Then [illegible] blew. Then Lorraine blew. Then Tom blew. It was a big job because the football was much bigger than all of them put together.

But, after each one had taken about ten turns at blowing, the football began to have quite a different look. He was all swelled

[illegible]

"You [illegible] pleased, [illegible] I'm going to [illegible] the feeling you have on Christmas morning when you get a brand new doll or toy that you've wanted for a long time. But when I start down it's like the terrible sinking feeling you have when the toy or the doll is broken. And," he said, "life for me is just nothing but ups and downs. That's why I'm so sad."

"I can fix that," said Tom Toddy. And he picked the football up and gave him a very big kick straight up into the air. And the football sailed up into the top of one of the very high trees. And [illegible] there between two branches.

"How's that?" called Tom.

"Fine! Fine!" said the football. "I'm never coming down—and up here my spirits are as high as I am. Thank you," he,

[illegible] and [illegible] the football [illegible] at her and [illegible] She [illegible] speak [illegible] ahead [illegible] And when David [illegible] saw, he was frightened [illegible] the path as [illegible] carry [illegible] I want you [illegible] fine [illegible] from [illegible] to read the story [illegible] at [illegible] station [illegible] half-past five next [illegible] will hear it.

CURB MARKET UNDERTONE HOLDS FIRM

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER

New York, April 17 (AP)—Price movements were irregular and uncertain in today's curb market, representing the efforts of professional speculators for the rise to maintain a good market before the three-day Easter closing, in the face of a marked disinclination on the part of traders to carry full lines of stocks over the recess. On the whole, the market displayed a firm undertone.

United Light & Power "A" and United Light's subsidiary, American Light & Traction, were again strong features in the utility group, reflecting continued demand for these issues, inspired by natural gas projects.

United Light A and both the old and new American Light issues reached new high ground for the year. Lone Star Gas continued to forge ahead into new high ground.

Utility shares generally, however, encountered selling on advances and failed to make progress. Niagara Hudson sold up moderately in active trading.

In the industrials, International Cigar Machinery rose 8 points to a new top for the year, then reacted. The electric equipment issues were strong, Crocker Wheeler and Jefferson Electric rising a few points to record peak prices for the movement.

Oils were generally steady to firm. Gulf and Humble sold up moderately, and in the low-priced group Reiter Foster was sent up more than a point to the best level of the year.

Standard of Indiana, however, and Cosden fell back moderately.

In the mines, Newmont and Roan Antelope were firm, but Noranda sagged.

Investment and holding company issues moved in narrow ranges. United Founders sold off for a time, but was soon supported.

Net earnings for March were $5,201,908, an increase of 64 per cent over the same month last year when net earnings totaled $3,152,838.

Net earnings of Cities Service for the 12 months were 6.79 times interest and discount on its debentures. Net to stocks and reserves amounted to $42,130,017, or 5.99 times preferred stock dividends. This compares with $32,220,493 or 4.46 times for the corresponding period a year ago.

Net to common stock and reserves amounted to $35,095,291 or $1.31 per share on the average number of shares outstanding. This compares with $1.14 per share for the corresponding period a year ago.

Coincident with the publication of its earnings statement, the company announced monthly dividends of 2½ cents per share in cash and one-half of 1 per cent in stock on the common stock. Regular monthly dividends of 50 cents per share on the preferred stock and preference BB stock and 5 cents per share on the preference B stock were also announced, all payable June 2 to stock of record May 15.

Warns Oil Industry of Overproducton and Price Lowering

New York, April 17 (AP)—A warning to the oil industry against surplus stocks is contained in the current issue of "The Lamp," official publication of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. Too much crude oil is being taken from the ground and too much gasoline is being refined, the article states, in proportion to the amount used. All this, it adds, results in heavy storage charges, depreciation of the product and a lowering of the price structure.

Copper Stock Prices

(1926 Average Price=100)

By J. W. LAIRD
(Irving Fisher Service)

Copper issues have as yet failed to reflect increased confidence in the near-term future of the industry. March average prices were lower than February's; they returned almost to the low levels of January.

The difficulties in the copper industry seem, paradoxically, to have been largely caused by a unity of purpose among producers. The low price of silver, a by-product for many producers, is likewise an adverse element.

Mainly, however, the tacit agreement to hold spot quotations for electrolytic at 18 cents a pound has caused prospective consumers to delay buying as long as possible, and where it cannot be delayed, limit buying to the hand-to-mouth variety. Buyers look on price-stabilization as unwarranted and impossible for a sustained period under conditions of mounting stocks in producers' hands.

With a reduction in the spot price, the die-hard consumers may be tempted to come into the market. Meanwhile, earnings have continued poor and the group as a whole offers less attractive prospects than do shares in most other groups.

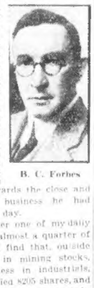
Plant Business Acorn, Tend It: Results Amaze

Forbes Recounts Experience as N. Y. Curb Reporter 25 Years Ago

—By B. C. FORBES—

NEW YORK, April 17—Plant a business acorn in this extraordinary country, tend to it diligently, and, lo, it develops into a mighty oak.



B. C. Forbes

When I first went down to Wall Street as a financial reporter one of my duties was to compile a complete list of each day's sales in the New York Curb market. That market then was out in the open air, on Broad st. The only method then in vogue for compiling the day's transactions was to buttonhole each curb broker towards the close and ask him what business he had done during the day.

On looking over one of my daily curb reports of almost a quarter of a century ago I find that, outside of transactions in mining stocks, the day's business in industrials, as reported, totaled 8205 shares, and "rails" 1000 shares of Chicago Subway!

This week the New York Curb Exchange's transactions have averaged well over a million and a quarter shares!

On the day here recalled transactions on the New York Stock Exchange totaled 769,200 shares.

One morning last week transactions reached 1,000,000 shares in half an hour.

It was in those days of nearly a quarter of a century ago that Frank A. Vanderlip made his famous remark, "We are a nation of economic illiterates." We certainly were not then a nation of investors. Nor were we a nation of speculators. I well recall that it was a front-page story when transactions on the New York Stock Exchange reached a million shares in one day.

Last Fall 16,400,000 shares were dealt in on the fatal Tuesday which marked the culmination, in point of activity, of the panic.

* * *

Whereas, the New York Curb Market is now housed in a stately building, has its president and board of governors, its highly efficient system of reporting sales, its nation wide ticker service, its rules and regulations governing the admission of stocks to trading privileges and did a total business in stocks last year of 473,770,379 shares, there were times a quarter of a century ago when all business (such as it was) was totally suspended. That was when rain fell in torrents.

Any fakir could then come along and start a market in any fake stock. The favorite bait of stock then employed to fleece the unwary was mining stock. On the day that non-mining transactions totaled 8205 shares and included only 11 stocks, business was reported in no fewer than 50 mining issues. Painfully few of them survive today.

* * *

Broad street offices overlooking the open-air market were occupied by curb brokers. There was an elaborate system of signaling orders and quotations from windows. It was done by hand, more particularly by the crooking and straightening of fingers. The busiest of curb houses had their offices near enough to enable clerks to transmit buying and selling orders by shouting. One enterprising broker, who, for a spell, did a roaring business, hit upon the idea of having all his men on the curb wear red caps.

* * *

This table comprises the transactions on the day referred to in all but mining stocks:

Sales	Stock	High	Low	Last	Chg.
25	Amer. Tobacco	325	325	325

Bond sales consisted of $1000 of American Writing Paper 5s and $7000 American Brake Shoe 5s. The Curb's daily bond sales this week have averaged $3,500,000.

* * *

Some Curb brokers were meanly cranky when approached for details of their day's transactions. There was one conspicuous exception. Billy Stafford, who not only willingly gave data covering his own activities, but used frequently to berate other brokers who were disobliging. Billy Stafford today is an extremely popular—and wealthy—member of the New York Stock Exchange.

Yes, this is a great country to grow up with.

CONVERTIBLE BONDS LEAD IN ACTIVITY

New York, April 17—The bond market wobbled uncertainly today. Trading in senior issues was along the small proportions characteristic of a pre-holiday session and prices fluctuated within a range of a quarter to a half point.

The bulk of the earlier transactions were odd lots, with the result that considerable thinness was again in evidence.

American Telephone convertible 4½s were most active and dropped a point and a half at the opening, but bobbed back to around 180 as the stock strengthened. Turnover in the debentures was large. Snare rivilege bonds on the whole were irregular.

Speculative and semi-speculative listings made some rather wide moves. White Sewing Machine 6s lost 2 points and National Radiator 6½s dipped more than a point. Hoe & Co. 6½s rose 1. North American Cement 6½s tumbled 4 points.

Among the higher grade issues, Atchison General 4s, Columbia Gas 5s, Baltimore & Ohio 5s, Central Pacific 5s, Rock Island 4s, Union Pacific First 4s and St. Louis, San Francisco 4½s were comparatively firm.

United States governments made virtually no move in the early transactions, which involved only a few of the listings. In the Foreign group prices were steady.

14,000 Acres of Oil Land Change Hands

Bradford, Pa., April 17 (INS)—What is believed to be the largest turnover of oil producing acreage in the history of the industry east of the Mississippi river was consummated when the Niagara Oil Corporation of Bradford purchased the oil property of Thomas H. Kennedy and the properties formerly owned by the William C. Kennedy Company.

Terms of the purchase, reduced to dollars and cents, were not made known by the negotiating parties but it was reported the sum involved was well up in the millions for the Kennedy holdings consisted of approximately 14,000 acres of producing territory.

Container Corp. Has Big Gain in Profits

New York, April 17—The Container Corporation of America today reported net income of $135,387 after all charges, depreciation and taxes for the three months ended March 31, 1930, a substantial increase over the $35,801 net income reported for the first three months of 1929.

Container Corporation of America is the leading producer in the United States of corrugated and fibre boxes used as shipping containers. Its Class "A" and Class "B" common stocks are listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

Securities Corp. to Give 10 for One

New York, April 17—Directors of Securities Corporation General have voted to split the common stock 10-for-1 and to issue a new series of $6 preferred which will be exchangeable on a basis of 1-16 shares for each share of the present $7 preferred. Special meeting of stockholders has been called for May 15 to approve an increase in authorized common to 272,350 shares from 27,235 and the issuance of the new preferred.

Transamerica Said to Seek Smith Bank

New York, April 17—Negotiations for the acquisition of the County Trust Co. of which former Governor Alfred E. Smith is chairman, by Transamerica Corp., a Giannini enterprise which controls Bank of America, are reported in Wall Street.

N. E. Creamery's Sales Increase

New England Creamery Products Company reports net operating profit, after all charges, but before taxes, for quarter ended March 31 of $24,517, compared with a loss of $10,578 for corresponding quarter of 1929. Net sales increased approximately 4 per cent for that period.

Warner-Quinlan Company

Stockholders of Warner-Quinlan Co. vote May 5 on the increase in authorized capital to 1,500,000 shares, no par, from 1,000,000. Right to subscribe to additional stock will go to stockholders of record April 25 and will expire May 15.

"Amos 'n' Andy"

Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corp. is said to have guaranteed "Amos 'n' Andy" not less than $250,000 from their first Radio picture, together with a 50-50 split on the net profit.

At the Radio Dial

By THE RADIO EDITOR

TWO OF THE most sensationally successful American male singers of the day will be heard on the same program during the R. C. A. hour on the Red Network at 10 o'clock tonight. They are Richard Crooks, tenor, and Lawrence Tibbett, baritone. They will be soloists in a radio performance of Stainer's cantata, "The Crucifixion," supported by Trinity Church Choir, with Clifford Cairns as director.

THE WORLD premiere of a new American grand opera will be broadcast by the National Grand Opera Co. from WEAF's New York studios at 11 tonight. The opera is the work of Charles Sanford Skilton, dean of music at the University of Kansas in Lawrence, Kansas. It bears the title, "The Sun Bride" and relates a legendary story of early sun-worshiping Indians of Arizona. Astrid Fjelde, soprano, will sing the title role. Others in the cast are Rosalie Wolf, soprano; Devora Nadworney, contralto; Judson House, tenor; Theodore Webb, baritone; and Earl Waldo, bass.

Astrid Fjelde

THE IMPRESSIVE Easter Dawn service from the side of Mt. Davidson will be broadcast through San Francisco studios of the N. B. C. and to the nation in general as a result of activities of the Hearst Radio Service. New England radio listeners will be enabled to hear the great outdoor service, thanks to arrangements completed today by the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser. The ceremonies and their accompanying music will be brought by transcontinental wire circuits to WJZ, New York, and thence to the transmitters of WBZ in Springfield and WBZA in Boston. The first words of the broadcast will go on the air at 8 o'clock Sunday morning. The service will continue for one hour.

FOUR SOUND PICTURES stood out in last night's varied grouping of wireless entertainment. One was the spirited sea battle in the Forty Fathom Trawlers' broadcast. Another was the exquisite piano playing by Percy Grainger of his own and Grieg's compositions in the Mobiloil Hour. The third was Olive Palmer's singing of "Robin Adair," and the fourth, the soprano-tenor duet from "Carmen" in the Philco Hour.

PERHAPS the most vivid touch of the evening was the dialogue of the coal-black Scotchman, first mate of the pirate ship in the trawler's sketch. The manner in which this Scottish-born negro handled the Highland burr was a caution. He was a suave gent, and he didn't lose any time in deposing his figurehead captain and taking complete charge of the pirate craft. The outlaw vessel ultimately fell victim to attack by one of His Majesty's ships, with the assistance of a pair of sturdy lads on the ship who raked her fore and aft with her own Long Tom.

SENATOR Carter Glass of Virginia, once Secretary of the Treasury, will discuss stock gambling in tonight's National Radio Forum on Columbia stations at 10:30. The framing of the Federal Reserve Act during the presidency of Woodrow Wilson was one of his achievements. He has prepared a bill aiming to curb stock gambling, which is soon to go before the Senate.

DETECTIVE MYSTERIES take to the woods tonight. The 9 o'clock broadcast on Columbia stations will deal with "The Secret Crime of App's Woods." The scene of the crime and the subsequent brilliant detective work is laid in Snyder County, Penn.

A NEW PROGRAM unit takes the air on WBZA and the Blue Network of N. B. C. at 9 o'clock tonight. This bears the designation of "The Knox Dunlap Orchestra." Under the direction of Leo Reisman, the band will purvey popular dance tunes for a 30-minute period each week.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

LARGEST EVENING
CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

Legislature Should Place Income Tax Burden Where It Belongs

SINCE its first discussion of the rank injustices of the State's income tax system, with its indefensible burden on the earners of small incomes, the Boston Evening American has received many letters and endorsements. Among them is the following telegram:

> "Have always believed in a graduated income tax.
>
> "The rate of tax on incomes should increase as the income increases.
>
> "A graduated rate is the only equitable one.
>
> "Pleased you are making an issue of this important question.
>
> (Signed) "DAVID I. WALSH."

Hon. David I. Walsh was Governor of Massachusetts when the groundwork was laid of this INJUSTICE TO THE EARNERS OF SMALL INCOMES IN THIS STATE, and his knowledge and opinion of it are important as well as interesting.

It then was estimated that at least nine billions of intangible personal property was hidden in strongboxes and was escaping taxation annually while the burden was falling almost entirely on real estate.

Governor Walsh, with other progressive citizens, sought to remedy that inequitable and dishonest condition.

They sought an amendment to the Constitution of the State which would eliminate the causes for the concealment of that vast store of intangible property, and they sought additionally a law which would enable both it and other forms of incomes to be taxed in PROPORTION TO THEIR WEALTH.

The Legislature adopted the present income tax plan, assuring Governor Walsh that it would immediately put into force the graduated system which would lodge the taxes upon those best able to bear them. That promise was defaulted. It was worth less than a scrap of paper.

The Legislature then was guilty of one of the WORST BETRAYALS OF FAITH in the history of Massachusetts, and the base results of its dishonesty have existed until this day to harass, annoy and mulct the wage-earners and others of small incomes.

The result of this betrayal was to place a RELATIVELY SMALL TAX upon such amount of the VAST INTANGIBLE WEALTH as might be discovered by the tax assessors and to place a RELATIVELY HIGH RATE UPON THE WAGE-EARNERS, who have not the methods, even if they had the disposition, to hide their income on tax day.

Its net result was to unite the small income earner with the real estate owner in jointly bearing the burden which should have been carried all these subsequent years by those who could carry it without hardship.

Now the present Legislature is in a good strategic position to redeem the defaulted promise of its predecessor and to establish an EQUABILITY IN STATE TAXATION as a substitute for the present condition which causes DISSENSIONS and DISTRUST among the people.

AS A START, LOWER THE INCOME TAX RATE, WHICH IS THE HIGHEST STATE RATE IN THE UNITED STATES, AND INCREASE THE EXEMPTIONS TO THE EARNERS OF SMALL INCOMES.

Aviation Joy and Gloom

Some News From Harvard

THE news of the day brings its joy and gloom to the field of Boston aviation.

It notes that the Harvard Flying Club has won the Grover Loening intercollegiate trophy, awarded for safety in the air and efficiency in ground work. That's a source of joy.

Then it notes:

> "The Harvard Club is the oldest flying organization in the country and the only one to own a plane outright."

That's a source of gloom in a country whose defense and transportation will increasingly depend on aviation. Possibly the generous Harvard alumni will take this tip and contribute more planes.

And next: John W. Wood, the headmaster, announces that forty-seven students at Rindge Technical School have now enrolled in the aviation courses which will enable them to obtain licenses as skilled fliers, pilots and aviators. So enthusiastic are they in this work, he says, they seldom hear the sound of the recess bells. That's more joy.

Now a question: What have the aviation authorities done to persuade the gallant Commander Eckener that Boston can provide an available and attractive American terminal for the transcontinental flights of his dirigibles?

Fighting Drugs Here

Legislature Should Back Allen

GOVERNOR ALLEN has proposed to the Legislature the creation of a commission to combat the alarming increase in the use of habit-forming drugs in this Commonwealth.

In this matter the Governor has placed his feet on a sane and humane path.

After discussing the increase in the traffic of the deadly poisons which sap the mentality, the morals and the physical strength of the addicts, Governor Allen approaches the subject with the statesmanlike sentence:

> "This is profoundly disturbing, since there is probably nothing that strikes a more insidious blow at the foundations of a free people than such a traffic which renders its victims powerless to carry their share of responsibility as citizens."

The suffering is borne not by the addicts and the State alone. The grief and heartaches are felt in many homes that otherwise would be serene. And peaceful citizens are too often subjected to the violent crimes which flow from the dementia of the drug-crazed addict himself.

Governor Allen should be able to count upon the hearty co-operation of the Legislature in the matter.

In Other Words

By NELSON HARDING

THE talkies are going to be so good that the next reform may require the fans to live up to the films.

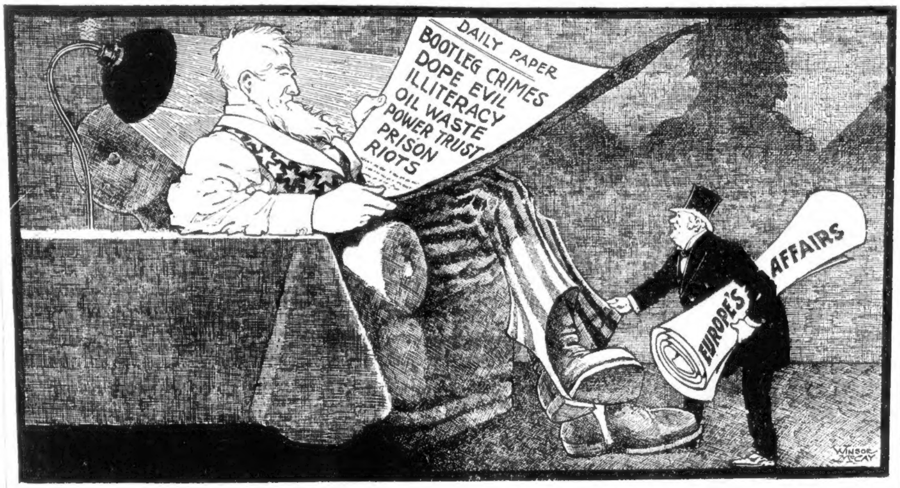
A FILM of "Red Riding Hood" will be obliged to picture the wolf as merely a sheep in wolf's clothing.

AND the animal can't be permitted to say to the child that its excellent teeth are "all the better to eat you up with, my dear!" The gleaming ivories must be explained as the result of faithful use of the toothbrush.

AND as "Goldilocks" barging into the house of the "Three Bears," not to be exploited under the new code of talkie ethics.

SCIENTIST says a bee must visit 32,000 clover blossoms to gather a pound of honey. A shorter and more successful trip would be a round of New York's 32,000 speakeasies.

PROBLEMS OF HIS OWN



IF Uncle Sam minds his own business and pays attention solely to his own business, he will find that he has his hands full, without taking on any more tasks such as certain Meddlesome Matties would like to have him do.

Europe's affairs are none of his affairs.

There is too much to do at home.

Keep on reading, Uncle, and pay no heed to that busybody at your feet.

The Science of Life

By H. G. WELLS

RECENTLY there has been a reaction in the other direction, and the bulldog is becoming less grotesque. Thus, now in one direction and now in another, the form of the breed has been moulded.

H. G. Wells

Presumably all of the domesticated animals and plants have been derived by the selective breeding of wild species. The various sorts of domesticated pigeons have all been evolved from the wild rock pigeon, Columbia livia, and an astonishing diversity of domesticated forms has been produced. It is not true, however, that in all cases the races of a domesticated animal spring from a single wild ancestor. In dogs, for example, it is probable that more than one ancestral species have been involved.

There are several kinds of wolves and jackals, which will breed freely with our dogs, and many of these can be tamed. It is rather the rule than the exception that the tame dogs of any region carry an obvious dash of blood from their local wild kindred.

The highly civilized countries are exceptional in this respect, for we select and mould our dogs to an extraordinary degree and we destroy our strays. But from Central Europe, across Asia and down through Africa the common dogs of the people show evident resemblance to the local kinds of wolves and jackals; and it is the same in America, for the Eskimo dog is like the North American wolf and the Hare-Indian dog is like the coyote.

Apparently the habit of domesticating dogs is ancient and wide-spread and it has entangled a number of different species into one inter-breeding complex.

But whether a domesticated race involves one species or many, the essential fact is this—that divergence of form has been brought about by the selection of variations, and that such variations do occur in the wild forms from which our tamed or cultivated races have been derived.

Indeed, it is not possible to study intensively any single group of animals without finding abundant variations of type.

Living tissue is always groping about in search of improvements. Naturally enough we do not find such outer creatures in the wild as we do in our kennels or farmyards or gardens; we do not find pug-dogs wheezing through the woods after their prey or ravenous cart-horses scouring the plains for grass to build up muscles quite unnecessarily large for their own needs.

These are creatures fitted to man's special requirements, for his amusement or for his service, and they would be unable to survive the breed in a wild state. But we find plenty of variations in a wild state all the same.

For example, our common European squirrel exists in two varieties, red and black. In some regions only one kind is found, in others only the other, while in the intermediate zone both black and red young may appear in a single litter.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

IS THIS THE TRUTH ABOUT WOMEN?

HERE is a mean letter about women.

It is so mean that, as "a female of the species," I chittered like a chimpanzee as I read it. Yet, to my rage, I can't shake certain of its charges from my mind . . . FOR I FURIOUSLY SUSPECT THAT THEY'RE TRUE!

Elsie Robinson

So I'm going to pass it on to you verbatim. That is what L. M. Clarke of Astoria, Ore., thinks of women. Do you agree with him? If not, why not, and what is her name? Yes—I have included L. M.'s address. If this results in hyacinths, he has only himself to thank.

Dear Miss Robinson:

I recently read your criticism of certain types of professional women, and I certainly admire it. It is exactly what women need to realize about themselves, but they won't see it, and I am convinced that it will take at least a thousand years to wake them up.

* * *

WOMEN are so smug, so self-satisfied! In their own eyes they are absolutely perfect. If they meet an obstacle, they instantly lay it to male jealousy or female treachery. Rarely does it occur to them to overhaul their own natures and discard the pettiness, stubbornness, slavery to conventions, unreasonableness, selfishness, cruelty, meanness, intolerance and that most devitalizing and exasperating of all traits—THE PERSONAL VIEWPOINT IN REGARD TO EVERYTHING ON EARTH! Ninety-nine per cent of all women, regardless of wealth, education or social status, are cursed with these shortcomings.

* * *

WHEN one considers the biological handicaps of woman, the drudgery she endured in a non-machine age, the silliness of the "pedestal" tradition and the way she was often forced into marriage, it is easy to see why she has developed no power of abstract thought, why she has a BACK YARD PERSONALITY and no confidence in her powers outside of home, church and school.

But now with political rights, professional training, college education, birth control, mechanized household equipment, travel, opportunity in all industries, it is time to expect a real change in woman, AND TO ASK OF HER WHAT SHE IS, OUTSIDE OF HER TRAPPINGS AND CHATTEL.

Kipling wrote—"the female of the species is more deadly than the male." Quite so! The Indian squaw did much more fiendish torturing than the brave. And this cruelty persists in modern women in spite of our romantic theories. The conventional white woman thrusts a straying girl straight to perdition rather than extend to her a pitying, helping hand.

* * *

A MOTHER will show a silly devotion to her own brood but ignore the flock of starving foreign children in the next block. AND AS A WIFE, THE INDIGNITIES AND MENTAL CRUELTIES SHE CAN HEAP UPON A HUSBAND (AND GET AWAY WITH IT!) ARE MOST SURPRISING.

* * *

An intelligent man, sizing up the female sex, is generally too chivalrous, too tolerant or too discreet to say exactly what he thinks of WOMAN, but I am convinced that many a time he wonders to himself whether it is possible for her ever to grow up.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 17—The native New Yorker is a study in tolerance. Annoyances that whip others into flurries of rage do not disturb him. This self-complacency is especially marked in the theater. Outlanders will fume and fret when forced to stand many times for seating of late arrivals.

The New Yorker is not a whit perturbed and submits to the inconvenience graciously. Neither does he mind the jostling and shin kicking along the streets. Those caught in traffic snarls who bestow black looks and whispered epithets are invariably strangers.

* * *

THE reason, of course is obvious. Natives are attuned to the metropolitan hurly burly of push and shove and know nothing else. They do not tarry to apologize for what seems to be rudeness. Neither do they expect an apology from others. It is give and take.

* * *

The Manhattanite will stand patiently in line at the box office windows at the theater and opera with never a murmur. He takes his turn like a good sport. This also applies to the native born who will wait at the entrance ropes of cafes for tables.

The visitor will snap his fingers at the headwaiter, argue, cajole and often bluster off in a huff while a metropolite is perfectly content to accept things as they are. Movie ushers have no difficulty in herding locals behind a tape, but fisticuffs have resulted with transients.

* * *

Perhaps the outstanding example of Gotham tolerance is during the subway rush hours. In these hectic periods thousands are stepped upon, yanked from under hats and actually manhandled by bull-necked huskies hired for that particular purpose.

* * *

YET there are not a dozen fist fights from such scrimmages in a year's time. I have seen men, and women, too, come up out of the subway kiosks with their hats smashed, buttons torn loose and otherwise disheveled—and usually they are smiling. To them it was a superb lark.

* * *

When celebrities are trundled to hospitals, the card of identity on the doors of their rooms bears a pseudoym. Gene Tunney was known at his hospital recently as "Mr. Brown." The camouflage is to keep off prying interviewers.

* * *

When Valentino was taken to a hospital shortly before his death, he was known as "Mr. Jones." It was a fortunate precaution, for shortly after extras proclaimed his illness crowds broke through guards to prowl about the wards searching for his name upon the door.

* * *

"Hog latin," a gibberish that was considered hot stuff in small towns 30 years ago, has had a revival along Broadway. Paul Whiteman talks it almost altogether in conversing with his orchestra.

* * *

Mrs. Edward Hutton is reputed to buy more clothes than any other woman in New York. It is not unusual for her to drop into a dressmaking salon and order 20 frocks at a clip.

From a street car ad:

"Chevalier, the French actor, is a cyclone of color, deep blue shirts with red ties and milk white hats with purple bands. No person else has been so able to shame the spectrum with noisy apparel."
